JOHNSON DIRECTS VIGOROUS ATTACK ON NRA PRACTICES

Mrs. Roosevelt Joins in Chorus of Criticism Invited in Effort To Rectify Errors of Blue Eagle Plan for Business.

SWEEPING REVISION IN CODE INDICATED Better Compliance To Be Keystone of Reorganiza- tion of System Set Up Under Recovery Act.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—NRA got a ready response today to its forum of self-invited criticism. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, among those who suggested changes, told those who had come to complain or listen that he had a pretty good idea of the recovery organization's defects and that he had a 12-point program, including shorter hours and higher wages, to remedy them.

With that, he listened to Joe Kloss, spokesman for the National Furniture Workers' Industrial Union, tear into the recovery unit that in the public mind had come to be almost synonymous with Johnson's name.

"So far as we are concerned the NRA has lowered our living standards," Kloss said.

First Lady Heard.

At the same time, speakers from four other unions were telling what they thought was wrong with the organization that has been the focus of Mrs. Roosevelt on the night of small bookstores and groceries were held.

But many of those who came through bitterly cold weather to hear Mrs. Roosevelt were surprised when Johnson, turned critic himself for the moment, outlined what he intended to do make the NRA better—and bigger, too.

The administration said his plan was aimed at a sweeping revision of codes and as many reforms as possible would be put into effect through general presidential rulings.

Program.

This was the program Johnson outlined:

1. A more uniform and equitable rule of national price stabilization in those cases where necessary to maintain wages at a decent standard against the certain results of predation.

Soviets Shoot Down Japanese Army Plane

TOKYO, Feb. 28.—(Wednesday).—A Japanese military plane was shot down by Soviet troops near the northern border of Manchukuo on February 17, said a Russian newspaper. The plane was shot down near Hsinking (Changchung) today.

The dispatches said the plane was shot down near the confluence of the Amur and the Sungari rivers. They also reported that the crew of the plane was killed.

Japanese military authorities admitted the plane had been shot down but denied that there were any casualties.

'Judge Rutherford' Plea Baffles Congressmen

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Congress has received petitions signed by thousands of persons protesting against the alleged barring of one "Judge Rutherford" from use of radio stations.

The petitions do not further identify him.

A number of radio bills have been introduced, on the question of the use of broadcasting facilities, one by Representative McFadden, republican, Pennsylvania, to require that stations selling time do so without discrimination.

Signers of the "Judge Rutherford" petitions assert that a religious "conspiracy" is responsible for his inability to obtain radio time.

FASCIST DEMANDS THAT AUSTRIA LIFT BAN ON HAPSBURGS

Heimwehr Chief Refuses Open Indorsement of Restoration But Wants Laws Repealed.

VIENNA, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, commander of the powerful fascist heimwehr, declared today that laws banning members of the Hapsburg dynasty from Austria and confiscating their property must be repealed.

The question of a possible restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy, he said, however, "is almost impossible to answer while we are in the midst of our work of reconstruction, particularly because we are not sure it can be kept a purely Austrian question."

He emphasized repeatedly that he and Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss are in full agreement and that "we are not disposed to dispose of any suspicion that he wanted to become dictator of Austria."

No Special Precautions.

The prince, Dollfuss' right-hand man in suppressing the recent socialist uprising and in political affairs, denied that extra precautions were being taken along the Austrian frontiers.

"If it should become necessary to safeguard the frontier," he said, "heimwehr troops would, of course, be rushed in that direction, but personally I do not anticipate this necessity."

The name Hapsburg, he went on, "is an idea, a conception, which reaches out and affects parts of Europe over and beyond Austria's present borders."

"Therefore the problem of restoring the Hapsburg dynasty must be approached with the greatest caution. It is not yet possible to say whether it would be desirable."

His remarks were made during a reception for newspaper correspondents.

Four in Rome Family Die in Blazing House

ROME, Feb. 27.—Four members of a family of six were burned to death here tonight when a fire broke out in a house on Via del Corso, 12, last night.

The family, which included a mother, a father, a son and a daughter, were sleeping downstairs, escaped.

The fire is thought to have been caused by a gas leak in the kitchen, which was lit by a gas stove.

The family had just moved into the house from Birmingham, Ala.

Two Gangsters Slain By St. Louis Police

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Death of two gangsters, identified by police as extortionists, in a gun battle with officers, was followed today by orders calling for the arrest of Herman Tipton, head of the Cuckoo gang, and two associates.

Norman Godley, ex-convict, and James Vincent Griffin, also known by police, were killed in a burst of gunfire from weapons of eight detectives who last night hid in the west side apartment of Michael Accardi, a liquor dealer.

POLICE WILL HAVE MORE GUNS, GAS FOR WAR ON CRIME

Chief Ordered To Tighten Department Reins; Abduction Bandits Quiet as Police Hunt Gangs.

As Atlanta Tuesday enjoyed its first 24-hour respite in a week from the activities of abduction bandits, the Atlanta police committee voted to arm the department with additional machine guns and tear gas, ordered Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant to tighten his disciplinary reins over the department and elect two lieutenants to aid in the fight on crime.

The board action was taken as department members continued their search for the organized gangs who have taken about a score of Atlanta motorists for "rides" and then robbed them.

The police committee elevated R. P. Burnett and R. H. McLean to lieutenant positions and took other steps to strengthen the enforcement ranks of the police system.

Neither of the lieutenants, however, was nominated by Sturdivant, the committee declining to accept his first three nominations—E. W. Ginn, twice nominated, and G. N. Ellis.

The chief then quit nominating and told the committee to make its own selections for the eligible list.

The day's crime reports were featured by one holdup, in which a negro bandit robbed another negro who obligingly gave him a lift in his car. Robert Givens, of 133 Cone street, was reported in an increasing number of reports to have been taken to Spring and Carnegie way, and gave him a lift to Lee street and Greenleaf avenue, where the bandit pulled a gun and robbed him of $5.

Thomas Greenleaf, 414 E. Grant building, reported to police that burglars entered his office and took scrap gold valued at $40.

More Lost Recovered.

While police kept their vigil for holdup men and burglars, William A. Rogers, arrested Monday in connection with the shooting of a man, was released today.

MAN QUESTIONED IN DODGE SLAYING

Clayton Countain Found Twice Wounded; Bullets Will Be Compared.

Victor Pierce, 28, of Clayton county, who was found in Woodstock Tuesday wounded in the right shoulder and chest and brought to Grady hospital under guard, Tuesday afternoon, was questioned by police in connection with the killing of Stanley Dodge, proprietor of a Jonesboro road tourist camp, who was shot during a holdup of his camp.

The shooting of Dodge was reported by the bullet wounds, Dodge having returned the fire of the bandits, although Pierce claimed that in an argument with a friend, it was said.

One of the bullets already had been removed from Pierce's shoulder, but the other will be extracted and probably will be compared with the bullet fired from Dodge's gun, it was said.

In addition, efforts will be made to have Mrs. Dodge view Pierce, it was reported.

Arrested in connection with Pierce, Akin Martin, 42, also of Clayton county, was being held by police pending full investigation of Pierce's shooting. It was said that Martin and Pierce were booked on "suspicion."

The arrests were made by the sheriff of Clayton county and Atlanta detectives.

Crowds Greet Miss Decker On First Day of Q. S. S. School

Second day's session of the Quality Service Cooking School will open this morning at 9 o'clock. The doors will be opened at 8.

Despite the 13-degree weather, one of the largest crowds that ever attended a similar event on the first day in Atlanta assembled, and with one of the greatest array of food manufacturers in the country participating, the Quality Service Stores Cooking School got under way promptly at 9 o'clock.

Long before the doors were open at 9 o'clock, the lobby of the big theater, and the sidewalks immediately adjoining it, were thronged with housewives eager to get in and obtain choice seats in order to see the demonstrations and hear Miss Viola Decker, instructor and one of the leading home economists of the country.

As a prologue to the opening session, 30 minutes of music was offered by Bob Hess, organist, from 8:30 to 9 o'clock. This same schedule will be observed on the remaining days of the school, today, Thursday and Friday.

Czar's Niece Charges Libel In Film Story of Rasputin

Princess Irina Denies Having Met "Mad Monk" and Claims Picture Represents Her as His Victim.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(UP)—The princess wife of Prince Yussouff, who had on the exotic life and fates of highest figures in the last days of the czarist regime, was revealed in court here today.

The fantastic tale was unfolded during testimony by Princess Irina Alexandrovna, niece of the last czar, during the opening session of her suit against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, film company. She charged libel in a film they produced and declared on the stand that she never had met Rasputin, allegedly depicted as her lover in a picture shown in Britain by the American concern.

The princess wife of Prince Yussouff, who killed the monk, charges in her suit that she was portrayed as "Princess Natasha," who was seduced by Rasputin in the film.

The court took time out to look at the picture, which was run off for the judge, 82-year-old Justice Horace Avory. On returning to the stand, the princess at once declared she had never even met Rasputin. Her husband, Prince Yussouff, was in court with her and will be called to testify.

Sir Patrick Hastings, one of the most renowned trial lawyers in England, acted as her counsel. He skillfully led the princess through a review of events in the Russian court at St. Petersburg from 1913 to 1916. His questioning was designed to show that she then was the czar's only niece and the only Russian princess of her age attending court, thus seeking to establish the identity of the character of Natasha in the film. He then asked:

"In the hospital scene where Natasha tells Chegodieff, 'I have no right to be your wife,' what did that convey to you?"

"That she had no right to marry him after what had happened between her and Rasputin," the princess replied.

"William Jowitt, for the defense, asked:

"Do you say the inference you ask the jury to draw after looking at the film is that Rasputin committed rape?"

"Yes," the princess retorted defiantly.

Sir Patrick said the part of the film "which introduces in the most dramatic manner what they call love interest is that part which casts these aspersions upon the princess."

"The makers of the film thought the man who killed out of deep and almost religious sense of duty would

MOTORMAN FINED IN SAFETY DRIVE TRAIN WRECKAGE WIELDS 9 BODIES

Trolley Ran Red Light, Charge; Many Traffic Violations Reported.

Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant's recent orders to patrolmen to enforce the traffic laws against street cars Tuesday bore their first fruit when a street car operator was fined $7 in police court for running through a red traffic light. Violations of traffic laws were reported in an increasing number Tuesday to the Atlanta Motor Club, as the club's campaign to make drivers safety-conscious gathered additional handwring.

The street car operator was L. V. Chandler, 28, of 488 Grant street, who was charged by Patrolman S. B. Satterfield with running a red light at Forsyth and Walton streets. Recorder John L. Cone said that "I have had reports that there is a lot of that going on, and it must be realized that street cars are a danger to the automobile in running a red traffic light."

Woman Struck Down.

Mrs. E. P. Jones, of 908 1/2 Tenth avenue, received the left leg and right shoulder Sunday night when she was struck at Peachtree and Pine streets by an automobile driven by a man who was charged with driving recklessly.

Engineer and Fireman Found Dead at Posts in Pennsylvania Crash.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Nine dead was the toll tonight in the wreck of an Akron-Pittsburgh train that hurtled itself from an overhead bridge and crumpled into a mass of scrap iron on the street below.

Shearing away the steel of the fallen locomotive with torches, rescue crews were reported in an increasing number of bodies, those of the engineer and fireman of the ill-fated "No. 1638."

Seven other bodies had been taken from the wreckage. One of them is still unidentified.

Thirty-six persons were injured. Some were given treatment on the scene and discharged but more than 20 remain in hospitals.

Three minutes before it was due in the north side station of the Pennsylvania railroad last night, the train dived from the bridge, tore a corner of a building and plunged into the street.

The roar could be heard a mile.

The dead are:

Francis R. Dravo, of Sewickley, elderly head of the Dravo Contracting Company and one of Pittsburgh's well-known industrial leaders.

Mrs. W. Miller Wardrop, of Sewickley, wife of an assistant to the general manager of the railroad.

W. M. Shaw, of New Castle, Pa., engineer.

O. C. Douthitt, of Youngstown, fireman.

John McKay Snyder, of Youngstown, Ohio.

David A. Ducharme, of Akron, Ohio, and Ansonia, Conn.

Thomas Jeffries, negro, of Youngstown, Ohio.

Clarence J. Mayer, Ingram, Pa. An unidentified negro woman.

Railroad officials say they do not know the cause of the wreck.

Fire trucks and police cars hurried from all parts of the city. Dazed and scarcely aware of the catastrophe, the passengers crawled out into the snow-filled streets in scanty clothing and were borne away to warmer quarters.

dozen priests and clergymen climbed through the tangled debris to give what aid they could.

Wadley New Sheriff Of Supreme Court

The Georgia supreme court Tuesday announced the appointment of L. R. Wadley, a native of Cedarburg, Wis., for the last 25 years employed at the capitol, as sheriff of the court.

He succeeds Marcus H. Field, sheriff of the supreme court for the last five years, who resigned on account of ill health.

Wadley for 15 years was secretary to the late Justice H. Warner Hill, of the supreme court, serving in that capacity until the death of the justice a few weeks ago.

Before that he served for 11 years as secretary to the late Attorney-General John C. Hart.

The new sheriff is a member of the bar, having been admitted after studying under Attorney-General Hart.

SMOOT INFLUENCE IN MAIL AWARDS TOLD TO PROBERS

Senator's Son Got $15,000 for Representing Firm; New Bill Would Allow Lines To Aid.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The activities of former Senator Smoot, of Utah, and his son in behalf of an air mail concern were described today to the senate air mail investigating committee by James G. Woolley, a former vice president of Western Air Express.

Woolley said Ernest W. Smoot, son of the senator, was retained by the company when Comptroller General McCall held up air mail payments on the Middle Tennessee contractual contract on the ground it had not been let to the highest bidder.

A telegram purportedly from Ernest Smoot to Woolley was introduced dated January 10, 1933, after McCall had rescinded his ruling, saying "contract ok'd today."

Enclosing a bill for $15,000 "for the specific services you instructed me on November 13 to perform in Washington," a letter purportedly written from the younger Smoot to Harris M. Henshaw, president of Western Air Express, was introduced.

An earlier letter said:

"Still have hopes general will approve your high bid. If he renders decision giving you contract, I will low bid, accept first checks under protest and file claim for the difference."

"This seems like a foolish procedure, but it is a precedent in the general's office and claims have always been paid."

"Feel nobody should bring pressure on general this week. If nothing happens first next week, my father and I will see McCall again."

Woolley asserted that Henshaw had said former Postmaster-General Brown would not go ahead with awarding of the contract without word from former Senator Smoot and

MISSOURIAN SLAIN; $207,000 STOLEN

Bank Messenger Shot Through Heart Fleeing From Four Bandits.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A bank clerk was slain and robbed of approximately $200,000 in a holdup by holdup men armed with a machine gun and pistols on a crowded downtown street here late today.

The loot was $1,000 in cash and the remainder in securities—some negotiable bonds, some government bonds and some industrial bonds.

Three men leaped from a motor car on Ninth street, just east of Walnut. Some of the numerous witnesses expressed belief the driver who remained at the wheel was a woman. Others said it was a man. Two men were wounded, one seriously.

The third shot, L. Webster Kemmer, 29, the clerk, with a pistol and picked up the packages containing the loot, while startled pedestrians looked on in horror.

The quartet fled north on Walnut street in the car which bore Kansas license plates.

A large crowd quickly gathered at the scene.

Kemmer and the guard had started to the old postoffice at Ninth and Grand avenues, only two blocks from the bank.

Swafford said the attack came unexpectedly that neither he nor Kemmer was able to make any resistance.

Shot through the heart, the clerk staggered to a haberdashery where he collapsed and died.

The reports that a woman drove the robbers' car led police to consider the possibility that Clyde Barrow, Texas desperado, and his gunwoman associate, Bonnie Parker, may have been involved.

Tonight police arrested two men and a woman in connection with the robbery. T. J. Higgins, chief of detectives, said eyewitnesses of the shooting identified one of the men as one

Columbia Library Bars Erskine Caldwell's Books

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Erskine Caldwell's two novels, "God's Little Acre" and "Tobacco Road," both of which depict a sordid side of the south, have been withdrawn from the library of Columbia University Teachers' College.

At the same time the library has on order and is waiting for the play, "Tobacco Road," current on Broadway, in book form.

Inquiries as to the truth of a published report that the novels were withdrawn because of the complaint of faculty members that they were "indecent and tended to corrupt," were met with the reply:

"The head librarian is out of town."

Assistants would vouchsafe only that the Georgia author's books at one time were on the library's shelves, and are not now on the library's shelves.

WOODRING ENDS JURY APPEARANCE IN GRAFT HEARING

Investigators on Trail of Fraud Learn of Card Parties at Which Officials Usually Won.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Harry H. Woodring, assistant secretary of war, late today concluded a two-day appearance before a District of Columbia grand jury to tell of dealings of his department with Joseph Silverman, New York trader, and others for the disposal of army supplies.

Woodring was in the jury room at about the same time that investigators disclosed they had uncovered stories of lobbyists playing cards with government officials, with the officials usually winning.

The investigators also said they had heard of gay parties on yachts or in fashionable gathering places where commercial representatives spun their web of intrigue around gullible or corrupt government representatives.

Tracing down these reports had required much time and United States Attorney Leslie Garnett said tonight the grand jury investigation probably would not be concluded until next week.

Study Approved.

Meanwhile, a congressional committee got the approval of house leaders for a thorough study of alleged "profiteering and irregularities involving the expenditure of public funds for national defense, especially by the war department."

At the same time a house naval subcommittee closed its open hearings on the approval of house leaders for a thorough study of alleged "profiteering and irregularities involving the expenditure of public funds for national defense, especially by the war department."

The house military affairs committee was pursuing a different tack. Its chairman, Representative McSwain, democrat, South Carolina, went before the rules committee to urge that this committee be given authority to hire investigators and swear and subpoena witnesses.

Without further ado, the rules committee, which controls the legislative process in the house, granted that request

1 Killed, 3 injured In Paris Rioting

PARIS, Feb. 27.—(AP)—One communist was slain and three were injured when rioting raged again in Paris early today.

A series of violent street battles ensued after communists attempted to break up a meeting of nationalists at their stronghold in the Belleville district.

They battled first around the doors of the nationalists' headquarters. Scattered fighting soon developed. The struggling combatants had swarmed into the streets when police arrived.

Roosevelt Pledges Primary Neutrality

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Roosevelt democrats declared a "hands-off" policy with regard to democratic candidates in the coming primary elections.

James A. Farley, as chairman, in a statement said the national committee would take no part for or against any democratic candidate in the coming primary elections.

The statement, however, was understood not to apply to progressive republicans known to have the approval of the administration, such as Senator Johnson of California.

"In view of the approaching primaries in many states," it read, "it is only fair that it be thoroughly understood at this time that the democratic national committee is not taking part either for or against any democratic candidate in a senate, congressional, state or municipal campaign."

HOUSTON SCHOOL HEAD NAMED BY EDUCATORS

Resolution Expected Today Asking Federal Aid for Nation's Schools.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 27.—(AP)—E. E. Oberholzer, superintendent of schools at Houston, Texas, today was elected president of the National Education Association's department of superintendence, now holding its annual convention.

A probability that more than $500,000,000 in federal appropriations will be requested for the country's school system was the subject of dominant interest today in the convention.

A resolution requesting federal aid probably will be presented in the convention tomorrow, and leading delegates said they expected it would be adopted.

The program probably will ask an immediate federal grant of $50,000,000 to keep tottering schools open the remainder of this school year. An appropriation of $100,000,000 additional to help maintain schools through 1934-35 is next on the list.

department of superintendence of the National Education Association, which opened in Cleveland last Saturday and which will run through Thursday. The Georgia party left Atlanta in a special car Saturday afternoon and one of the interesting features of the trip up was a questionnaire on Georgia history. This grew out of a special Georgia day program recently given by the Rotary Club of Griffin in which the Rotarians were given an opportunity to try themselves out on a typical sixth grade test in Georgia history. A member of the party traveling to Cleveland furnished copies of the history questions for the party and the experience proved both interesting and enlightening for the school officials.

Georgia Breakfast.
Under the direction of M. R. Little, a member of the state department of education and president of the Georgia Education Association, and George W. Wannamaker, superintendent of the Griffin public schools and Georgia director of the National Education Association, a Georgia breakfast was held Tuesday morning at the Statler hotel. The breakfast was informal, but all present joined enthusiastically in discussing plans for increasing Georgia's membership in the National Education Association. President Little announced at the breakfast that at the present time American and Griffin are the only school systems in the state having 100 per cent membership in both the Georgia Education Association and the National Education Association.

Prominent Georgians.
Among the Georgians attending the convention are Dr. Willis A. Sutton, a former president of the National Education Association; Reid Hunter and H. H. Bixler, of the Atlanta school system; Superintendent Jere A. Wells and Knox Walker, of the Fulton county schools; Mrs. Jere A. Wells, Superintendent H. C. Higher Education Changing With New Deal Dean Sanford Tells Session of Civic Clubs

Notables who attended a civic club luncheon given Tuesday to Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the university system; Dr. Sanford, Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech, and Alva Maxwell, banker, who presided.

Higher education, like business, is changing with the new deal, and universities all over the country are trying to adapt their curricula to the new order. Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the University of Georgia, told a good fellowship meeting of all the civic clubs at a luncheon Tuesday at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

"The problem of educational institutions is this: We must enlarge the field in which university graduates are employed, or we must change our type of education," he said. "The latter seems to be the order of the day."

Dr. Sanford said that beginning in 1917, there was a great rush of students to the colleges and universities. They had been assured that educated men and women were in demand, and that, whatever happened, they, by virtue of their expert training, would be exempt from suffering.

Then came the crash, and now men and women with degrees from great universities are begging for jobs, some offering to work for their board.

Graduates No Better Off.
"And now the strange spectacle comes to the non-college man," Dr. Sanford added. "Those who for so many years had been assured that they did not have a college education now see the graduates with degrees in no better position than they are themselves."

Expensive college education had brought protests from taxpayers, Dr. Sanford pointed out, and these had resulted in the institutions curtailing their expense, reducing their overhead in the same way that business was. "Those of us who are executives are duty bound to organize our institutions with a view of simplifying their operation, doing away with duplication, and useless expense," he warned. "Educational administrators, rather than laymen in the legislature, should assume the responsibility for a more economical and more effective organization of the state's program for higher education."

Hoped out that a simplification of the Georgia system had been brought about already by putting the state-owned institutions in the hands of regents, replacing a large number of trustees whose duties were to some extent duplications.

Economy Needed.
"Those of us who are engaged in executive work are in duty bound to plan and organize the larger aspects of our work as to result in the greatest possible economy in educational expenditures," Dr. Sanford continued. "If publicly controlled institutions are engaging in unnecessary or wasteful duplication, educational administrators in charge of the institution, rather than laymen in the legislature, should take the responsibility for a more economical and more effective organization of the state's program for higher education."

"We have suffered a considerable loss of public confidence, much of it deserved, because of the slowness of educational administrators helping to formulate and carry out larger plans of economy in educational expenditures. The large number of state-wide surveys is an indication of the public attitude. But, my friends, let me say, if we reduce the cost of government, we must be sure that we are not sacrificing those interests and institutions which alone make our government possible. It should be perfectly clear that colleges and schools should not be called on to bear the whole burden of these forms of mismanagement that are certainly upon us and certainly need correction. At the present time the choice of American lies between education and good roads. A hundred pounds, to be sure, because they are obvious, simple and something they can all agree upon. When education is in a position to demonstrate its worth in service rendered, it may expect to receive an increasingly large share of the nation's resources to carry forward the nation's greatest enterprise."

Problem of Education.
The problem of educational institutions is this: We must enlarge the field in which college graduates are employed or we must change the type of education given our boys and girls. The latter seems to be the order of the day.

"All over the country, colleges and universities are now entering on a period of experimentation. Chicago, Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Stanford, the Universities of Washington, Oregon, Texas, North Carolina, Wisconsin, Minnesota, California, Georgia, represent the endowed and state-supported institutions making radical changes in the curricula to meet the needs of a changing civilization. No institution is attracting so much nationwide attention as the University System of Georgia."

"All these educational experiments indicate clearly that never have the purposes, methods and objectives of the American universities been so conspicuously in the public eye as at present, and there is much confusion in the minds of the general public and of those engaged in educational enterprises, as to the proper objectives of undergraduate education. Never were there so many colleges and universities endeavoring to inaugurate programs leading towards the promotion of sound learning or more earnestly seeking in these efforts."

Convict's Experience.
"Booth Tarkington relates that an old convict lifer who had never been outside the penitentiary since he was 20 came out at 63 a free man. He was out three days and three nights, but was back on the fourth morning asking the warden to lock him up again. He could not adjust himself to the new world but fled from it in terror, shivering the too great pain of the necessary readjustment. Every one in some degree experiences similar difficulty. The successful in life are those who have the power and the vision to make adjustments. Those who fail are those who have not that power."

"Who are responsible for our shortcomings? The Bible tells us of a plan used in olden times. When a man was found dead, all the elders and good men in the nearby towns were gathered together and made to swear that their hands were innocent of the death of the dead man. Why then, the good men summoned instead of the wicked men to take this oath? The answer is this: The best men in every community are responsible for its shortcomings. The makers of democracy a leveling-up process rather

FEDERAL REGULATION SOUGHT FOR TOBACCO

Measure Will Be Introduced at Present Session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A plan for federal regulation of tobacco warehouses, including licensing of warehouses, mandatory tobacco grading service, licensing of weighmen and inspection of scales is being drafted in a bill for introduction in the present session of congress.

Representative Mitchell, democrat, Tennessee, said today the plan was formulated by Dr. W. J. Fitts, of the tobacco section of the agricultural adjustment administration, and former Tennessee state commissioner of agriculture.

The proposed bill would confer broad powers on the secretary of agriculture for regulation of the marketing of tobacco.

It would provide that "no warehouseman shall operate a 'loose leaf' tobacco warehouse floor or act as a commission merchant, broker or agent for selling loose leaf tobacco without first receiving a license from the secretary."

The secretary would be authorized to "issue a license for the conduct of loose leaf tobacco sales warehouses, to make and enforce rules and regulations regarding methods of handling and weighing tobacco, grading systems, fees and commissions, and all other regulations necessary to govern the operation of loose leaf tobacco warehouse sales."

One of the most important provisions of the proposed bill is that which declares that "before tobacco may be offered for sale on loose leaf warehouse floors, it shall be graded by licensed graders in accordance with the standards approved by the secretary."

Expenses of the grading system would be defrayed by a grading fee of 1 cent per hundred pounds, to be deducted from the proceeds of the sale by the warehousemen.

The bill would prohibit warehousemen from being "interested in any manner, financially or otherwise, in the purchase or resale of any pile or piles of tobacco bought on his floor by any speculator or reseller."

than a leveling-down process. This gentleman, is your mission." Tribute to Roosevelt.
Dr. Sanford paid a high tribute to President Roosevelt and his new deal which he said was here to stay. On his trips to Washington, he added, he had met leaders from all over the country, and these were enthusiastic in their praise of the president and his sincerity.

At the conclusion of his talk, Dr. Sanford was given an ovation by the clubs. RELIEF NURSING WORK SHOWS BIG INCREASE

A large increase in cases of illness covered by the district nursing service of Fulton county has occurred during the cold wave, according to Miss Ada M. Barker, Fulton county relief administrator.

A total of 156 pneumonia cases and 120 influenza cases were visited during the past week, the southwest portion of the city showing the greatest increase with a total of 111 new cases from this district.

Figures given out by Miss Barker show that the nursing service has rendered home nursing to relief families in the county totaling 3,381 patients for the month of January, requiring the services of 50 white and 30 negro graduate nurses. The service under the direction of Miss Lillian Blischoff handled a total of 523 cases during the week ending February 25.

In many instances, it is reported, two or more illnesses have occurred in the same family. Visits during the week covered 1,118 non-communicable diseases, 888 communicable diseases, 153 pneumonia, 129 influenza and 521 maternity cases.

Accidents among CWA workers for the week totaled 53, Miss Barker said, showing a slight increase over the previous week. No serious injuries were reported. Miss Barker pointed out that an experienced first-aid staff is maintained on each CWA project and a staff of 30 physicians is available, as well as hospital and ambulance service. Compensation amounting to two-thirds of weekly wage, not to exceed $5.75 per week, is paid workers for traumatic injury caused by CWA work.

COLUMBUS, AUGUSTA SEEK PAVING OF ROADS

Delegations 'Satisfied' After Conferences With Talmadge and Wilburn.

Delegations from Columbus and Augusta expressed satisfaction Tuesday with the results of interviews with Governor Talmadge and Chairman W. E. Wilburn, of the highway board in reference to road projects.

The party from Columbus asked the highway board to pave the route from Columbus to Fort Benning, known as the Glade road.

Ed Wohlwend, chairman of the Muscogee county commission and a member of the party, said it also wanted the paved road from Warm Springs to Columbus completed, but Wilburn said after his conference with the party that that proposal was not mentioned. Asked what he told the Columbus men, Wilburn said the highway board "doesn't make many promises."

The delegates, however, expressed optimism. In addition to Wohlwend the party included T. G. Reeves, vice chairman of the county commission, and C. L. Rhodes, county engineer.

The Augusta party, including Representative Roy V. Harris, J. G. Glover, of Augusta, and Jack Eubanks and G. B. Lambkin, of the Columbia county commission, asked the highway board to keep the Augusta-Lincolnton road from the Richmond county line to Evans, on the west side of the C. & W. C. railroad, where it now is, and to pave it quickly.

Wilburn said he agreed to the proposed location of the road, with the proviso that the plan prove practicable, and told the delegates that the board already planned a paving project on the route, probably to be put under contract next month.

BOY, 9, IS REVERSED BY APPELLATE COURT

The Georgia court of appeals Tuesday reversed the Dougherty superior court case in which Russell Grace Jr., 8-year-old Albany boy, had been awarded $9,000 damages from Thad Huckabee, motor car dealer, for injuries sustained when he was struck by one of Huckabee's cars.

The reversal was ordered because the trial judge permitted attorneys for the boy to read to the jury a number of decisions in which high damages for auto injuries were sustained by the higher courts.

The Merchandise Warehousemen's Association of Atlanta as well as other local associations in this vicinity will be represented. Clem D. Johnston, code authority for this region, will be present to explain in detail the merchandise warehousemen's code and to outline proposed enforcement methods. M'CALLEY OUTLINES POLICY AS CANDIDATE

W. L. McCalley Jr., candidate for the office of county commissioner, made a talk Tuesday night in which he outlined his policies.

"The board of county commissioners, as you know, fixes the cost of operating the county government, and determines the benefits you get for the money you pay in taxes," he said.

"Each year the commissioners have charge of the expenditure of a sum of approximately four millions of dollars. This money is what you pay to the county in taxes, and it is to your advantage to see that the men charged with the management of your county affairs are capable and well trained for the work. My business training and experience are such as to ably fit me to discharge the duties of commissioner in a highly satisfactory manner.

"For the past 22 years I have been in the surety business in an executive capacity, charged with the handling of business problems and financial affairs of considerable importance. From 1920 through 1923 I served as a member of the board of education of the city of Atlanta, and for two years as chairman of the finance and building committee. During my term the board operated within the budget and carried over a surplus each year.

"I am, therefore, justly proud of the large number of improvements in the school system effected during that period. I am extremely anxious to bring about a reduction in the tax burden of the citizens of our county, but feel that I cannot state the extent of the reduction possible until I investigation and study to the amount of money required for the absolutely necessary operations of the county.

Rather than rash and impractical promises, I prefer to pledge my earnest and vigorous efforts for the accomplishment of as large a reduction as will be possible.

"If elected, I would be committed to no group, but would welcome co-

He said that he was looking for a feet of floor space. He explained that a demand for the company's product was active in the south and the branch plant had been decided on because of economical distribution.

The company has branches at Chicago and Brooklyn. It has been in business for the past 74 years. Mr.
Kovacs added. He expected to have his Atlanta branch in operation in 80 days, having already seen several buildings.

should be paid on the same basis. This is fair to county employes and taxpayer alike, and is the basis upon which I would vote to fix salaries of all county employes."

"AN EYE TO THE FUTURE — AN EAR TO THE GROUND"

—this describes General Motors' policy,

a policy by which the public is given what it wants in better cars year after year, and yet is safely protected against ill-timed or dubious experiments

BULL'S-EYE!
... thanks to you!

ON the dotted lines of dealers' order books is being written the public's notion of the fashionable 1934 motor car.

From where we stand it certainly looks as if General Motors had scored another bull's-eye.

If our 1934 streamline designs have hit the very centerpoint of public favor, as seems clear, we are glad and grateful.

And we want to give credit where credit is due.

The truth is, the people of America
helpfully told us

well in advance just about what they wanted.

Through the world's largest automotive dealer organization, through replies to more than a million letters of inquiry we sent last year to motorists, we got the story.

It was priceless guidance in shaping into mature and beautiful form the lessons we had learned in streamlining over a period of years.

And it enabled us to hit the target on streamlining in our 1934 cars as we hit
it on No-Draft Ventilation and Knee-Action Wheels.

FARM CONTROL GROWS NEARER.

The approval of the Bankhead compulsory cotton control bill by the house agricultural committee is significant of the growing sentiment in Washington and throughout the nation in favor of rigid governmental control of agricultural output as a safeguard in future against the disastrous surpluses of the past.

With the near approach of the planting season for cotton, time is the very essence of the situation in the matter of the Bankhead bill. Already southern farmers are plowing their fields, getting their lands ready for planting and laying their plans for the crops they will raise this summer.

It is vitally important that they should know as early as possible just what to expect in the way of acreage or other regulation. If they are not given this information within a short period, it is probable that another plowing-up campaign, with its necessary waste in time and effort, will be necessary.

For this reason the Bankhead bill should be pushed to final consideration with the least possible delay.

The increasing support for governmental supervision of all agricultural production explains, at least in some measure, the great care which has been taken in the writing and rewriting of the Bankhead bill, which now bears but little resemblance to the shape in which it was first presented. Since it is inevitable that upon the success or failure of this measure to restore healthful conditions to the cotton industry will depend the application of similar control methods to the other major agricultural crops, the advocates of control, whether they are particularly interested in cotton, wheat or any other product, have concentrated their efforts in making the Bankhead bill constitutional and giving it every chance to successfully accomplish its objective.

It is apparent that the cotton producers are almost unanimously in favor of governmental restriction of production. The large majority of the cotton growers realize that there is little hope for material reduction through co-operative effort, despite the general acknowledgment of the vital necessity for this year's crop to be held within 10,000,000 bales if prices are to remain on a profitable level.

In former days, a large element of our agriculturists was prone to attend reduction conferences and then go home and increase acreage in order to take advantage of the high prices it hoped would result from the lessened output of other planters. Generally the result was an increase instead of a decrease in the whole crop.

Incident to the intensified publicity given to agricultural problems as a result of the relief efforts of the federal administration, the farmers seem now, as never before, to realize that they are standing in their own light if they plant two acres, when they can expect just as large returns from their shortened production because of the resultant higher prices.

It is evident that this new attitude of the farming interests has been felt in Washington, and the growing support for rigid control of production, as the best cure for the ills of agriculture, is the result.

A BELOVED JURIST AT 80.
Today Judge James B. Park, of the Ocmulgee circuit, celebrates at his home in Greensboro his 80th birthday, surrounded by his children and his grandchildren and with the companionship of his wife of many years—one of the finest types of Georgia womanhood—who has been at his side during a long life rich in achievement and service.

Judge Park typifies the highest standard of public servant. No jurist in Georgia is held in higher nor more widespread esteem.

He has established a unique record during his long service on the bench. Fearless in his decisions, the conduct of his court has been marked by his deep knowledge of the law, and his firm application of justice tempered with mercy.

A host of friends in every section of Georgia will join with his neighbors and loved ones today in felicitating this respected Georgia jurist in reaching, still in the full possession of his mental and physical faculties, the 80th milestone of his life.

PINCHOT OFFERS FOR SENATE.

The announcement by Governor Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, that he will oppose Senator Reed for the United States senate, and that he will do so on a "support Roosevelt" platform, is not surprising.

Since his youth, Governor Pinchot has evinced an intense interest in public affairs, especially in the preservation of the natural resources of the country and the betterment of living and working conditions of the people. He has served on many national commissions and in his younger days served the federal government in several bureaus charged with conservation work.

Although possessing a large fortune, Governor Pinchot has been so consistently progressive in his public policies that the charge of radicalism has frequently been launched against him by his political opponents. He is, in many respects, more advanced in his beliefs than any of the other progressive republican leaders.

It is but natural that, holding beliefs which largely coincide with the policies now being applied by the democratic administration, Pinchot, even though a republican, should announce that he will run on a platform calling for full support of President Roosevelt.

There will undoubtedly be many candidates in next fall's congressional elections who will seek election on similar platforms, but the difference between most of them and Governor Pinchot will be that they will be largely attempting to slide into office on the president's coat-tails, while Pinchot's entire public record has shown an earnest bent towards progressive principles.

The entrance of Governor Pinchot into the senatorial race in Pennsylvania will make further uncertain an already doubtful result, for the strength and the ability of republican Senator Reed cannot be doubted.

The democrats can be expected to present a strong candidate, who will also run on a progressive platform. With Pinchot splitting the republican vote, there should ensue a neck-and-neck race, with the result uncertain until the closing of the polls on election day.

MISSISSIPPI VOTES BEER.

The general approval with which the people of Mississippi have greeted the action of the legislature in passing a bill legalizing the sale and manufacture of beer in the state was to have been expected.

The lifting of the prohibitory laws from the Mississippi statute books will bring new taxes into the state treasury as well as to the local governments, by which the sale of beer will be licensed.

In Georgia the state government is receiving no revenue from the large trade in beer now being carried on, while the local governments which have licensed it have done so in spite of state laws.

Such a situation is unsound and unsatisfactory and there can be little doubt that the Georgia legislature at its next session will take similar action to that taken by Mississippi and other southern states.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

The French Way.

It was the second day of the rioting in Paris and it was a miserable and cold day. Huge lines of police were thrown across the Place de la Concorde in front of the parliament buildings in expectation of the riotous. They came. But right in front of the oncoming mob marched a fellow with a white flag. Presently he and three or four others advanced while the rest stood still and called to the policeman that they wanted to see the prefect, Monsieur Jean Chippie. M. Chippie happened to be there. He is a hard little Corsican fellow, immensely rich, debonair, a tin-tipped Mussolini, but he has a sense of humor.

"All right," he said, "let them come." So the delegates with the white flag came up.

"Monsieur Chippie," said their spokesman, "this is a bad night. It's tough for all of us to be out here. We might catch cold and develop pneumonia. Then there would be an epidemic maybe in Paris. What do you say if we postpone the fight till tomorrow night? We don't want the police to be standing here in the rain for nothing. We have no intention of being set up on the other side of the street, too, if the government isn't out by tomorrow night, we will attack, and we'll win the fight, too. But tonight, you see, the weather is so bad. We will go home and the policemen can go home, too."

Chippie agreed. The next night the government was out. It had resigned. He would add that the party between Chippie and the rioters took place under an umbrella.

The Issue of the Day.

If one pays more than mere passing attention to what is going on in the world at present, it soon becomes clear that the dictatorialships that are being set up on the other side of the Atlantic have one thing in common, namely this: they are dead set against any movement or ideology of internationalism and human brotherhood. These movements and ideologies are a hindrance. And they are a hindrance to the dictatorialships because the dictatorialships move in the direction of war. So long as men consider their fellows across the border as brothers, so long is there no possibility of unleashing a war. But when all criticism is silenced when all opposition is gagged and squelched and those daring to go on believing in brotherhood crushed, the path to war becomes clear.

This is what is happening now. Every nation and tribe, ensconced safely behind the barriers of its own frontiers, is being turned into a self-contained unit. This goes on the pretext of economic self-determination and self-sufficiency. But in reality it works national pride, at the expense of others, in hand. People begin to value their own virtues as superior to those of others. People begin to believe that they are superior, to have a task to fulfill, namely to impose their own brand of thinking and acting on others.

People begin to conceive that they have a mission to fulfill, because they have begun to believe that they are better than others. National pride turns into chauvinism. Nations begin walking around with chips on their shoulders. Who says I am not a cultural tribe? they seem to ask. "Who dares to say that I am not as good as others? I will show you how good I am."

And the showing usually takes the form of a demonstration of physical superiority, of course, but spiritual values are first killed off. This is the trend of affairs in Europe.

Health Talks

THERE IS REAL MAGIC IN MODERN MEDICINE.

When Ehrlich introduced salvarsan, otherwise "9006," the world was thrilled by the promise of cure, the medicine world particularly. One dose of the new remedy was to achieve nothing less than "therapia magna estersilens," that is, the absolute eradication of the microbes or germs of syphilis from the blood. The laboratory scientists actually entertained such hopes. In practice, however, it soon became evident that one dose did not cure, so a second dose was advised. Even that proved disappointing. Then a course of treatment was tried. The syphilis persisted. Eventually salvarsan was displaced by newer and better remedies. I mention this here as an instance of magic in medical science. We've had plenty of that kind of magic in the past, and we shall have plenty more in the future.

Alphadinthronol is a dye related to picric acid (which is trinitrophenol). Dinitrophenol or its sodium salt is readily obtainable on the market in pure form and is quite cheap.

For years, p. p. girls have been sighing for a magic medicine which would reduce without the painful necessity of restricting one's diet or taking exercise. For years I have been praying no such medicine would ever be discovered. To my eye, eyes are always fatigued and cures are being sought. Now I fear my prayers have been in vain. This new magic medicine, alas, laboriously mentioned above, has come to do for fat folks what insulin has done for the holy figs. But I hope you, my big boys and nice girls, do not get all in a latter pushing and shoving to be first to obtain full information from me about this wonderful new reducing medicine. I warn you now that my stereotyped reply to all such requests will be "Consult your physician." The new medicine is to be used without dieting or exercising, can be safely and effectively given only under the personal supervision of the physician, in this respect it is like insulin building up underweight individuals.

What the medicine does is simply to speed up metabolism. Makes you burn up the fat from two to eight times faster than the normal rate. And you do burn—I'm telling you, for I tried it on the dog for two weeks and lost four pounds and did I keep warm? But the trifling discomfort of being rather too warm and somewhat in a steamy state much of the time was not too high a price to pay for the reduction of four pounds, with out any restrictions in my fried corn meal mush and maple syrup and all that.

The new medicine is not wholly without untoward effects. Sometimes it takes away taste of sweet for a while. Sometimes it imparts to skin and whites of eyes slightly jaundiced hue, but this is not jaundice at all, merely a dye effect, which clears up soon after the medicine is discontinued. Generally it melts the superfluous fat chiefly from the belly and hips.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

SCORE WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The government's own scoring chart shows the new deal has had a struggle to keep business at fair levels during the hard winter months.

Mr. Roosevelt has had to be content with holding his own. The end of February now finds him just about where he was in September. That happens to be about the same general level of business at this time two years ago.

There will be a full-hearted sigh of relief among his economic experts when the ice thaws next month and the rivers of commerce start flowing again.

While the immediate past was somewhat cloudy, the immediate future (March and April) is radiant with prospects. Improvement is as certain as anything can be.

What will happen after May 1 is anyone's guess.

CHART You can figure out where we have been and where we now stand from the following unprejudiced chart. Each figure shows our relation to normal during the months cited. Normal (100) is the average for the years 1923-25.

Seasonal fluctuations have been taken out of the calculations, so the figures represent the clearest possible unvarnished estimate of our progress up and down.

INDUSTRY The best news in the business box score is in the first column. It shows industrial production has been picking up slowly for the past four months. Factories are getting busier making products for spring sale.

Their production has been running up to 18 per cent better than last year and 12 per cent better than two years ago. Last year at this time we were diving for the bottom, so comparisons with last year are apt to be misleading. The best comparison can be obtained from two years ago.

Mr. Roosevelt would be waving his hat and cheering from the White House roof about the industrial production figures, if it were not for the fact that employment and wages have failed to show equal improvement.

PURCHASING POWER Industrial employment has been tightening, since October. So have wages. Employment has fallen 2 per cent and wages about 4 per cent (while factory output was increasing). Wages in February are estimated to have been only 53 per cent of normal.

That condition is bound to improve almost immediately. Factories cannot continue making more and more goods without putting on additional men and paying out more money in wages. Therefore the problem is not as serious as it sounds, but it does show that the new deal has failed as yet to work any wonders with private industrial employment and private industrial wages.

WEATHER Mr. Roosevelt obviously expected this, or worse. That is why he created the CWA to hand out money until May 1.

He banked rather heavily also on the public works program. It has washed out on him again.

The gods seem to be against the PWA. In December, the PWA was really getting somewhere. During the mild early winter weather, contracts were being filled for actual work at the rate of $200,000,000 a month.

Then came cold weather as we have not had in 20 to 30 years in many sections. You cannot pour concrete or do much other PWA work at freezing temperatures. Contracts fell off during the first two weeks in February to half the December rate.

But that situation, too, is due for an almost immediate change. Winter cannot last much longer. Work will be offered through the PWA in strong volume at the first sign of spring.

That is what we have been waiting for since Secretary Ickes started to work on the PWA last July.

PROOF The results to date show how wrong are these congressmen, editors and other agitators who want ten and twenty billions allotted to public works, as a sure cure for the depression. There is so much lost motion in the public works employment system that it seems much better to give the money away through the CWA. At least you employ people and create purchasing power that way without waiting for red tape to unravel or the ground to thaw.

MILLENIUM A business executive walked into a large bank here the other day and tried to deposit $1,000 in a savings account.

Bank officials declined to accept it. They said the businessman already had too much money on deposit there. They did not want any more money.

That situation is supposed to be rather general. The banks are filled with cash because of requirements for liquidity. The deposit insurance applies only to accounts under $2,500, so most accounts are being held within that limit.

But the real reason the banks do not want more money is that they lose by taking it. They pay 3 per cent, or around that, on savings accounts. There is not much they can put that money into nowadays at a rate sufficiently above 3 per cent to make any profit.

REFERENCES A government official walked into another bank here with a few hundred dollars to open a savings account.

The bank teller eyed him skeptically and asked: "Any references?"

The official blew up. "Ye gods," said he, "do I have to furnish references to get you to take my money?"

After some debate, the bank agreed to take the money without references, on condition that it reserved the right to reject any future deposits.

The Mechanic Who Can Do the Jobs

Is the One Who Has the Most Tools

By Robert Quillen

An article in a current magazine makes the point that success is largely a matter of vocabulary. If a man knows a few big words, he will be a foreman; if he knows scores of jaw-breakers, he will be the head of the firm.

This method of measuring men has been tested and proved by the Human Engineering Laboratory. This organization prepared a list of 150 words, including such strangers as "glabrous," and invited men in all walks of life to select a synonym for each word.

High school freshmen averaged 76 errors, college freshmen 52, college graduates 27, college professors 8 and "major" business executives but 7.

This seems to prove something, but it doesn't prove that a vocabulary of unusual words can make anybody successful. If that were true, a few months' study of the dictionary would bring larger returns than four years of college training.

An experiment like an X-ray picture, is without value unless somebody knows how to interpret it. It is easy to "prove" that tobacco makes men stupid if you select stupid men for the experiment.

Statistics show that college-trained men are more successful than others, but overlook the fact that boys destined to be successful are the ones who go to college.

So this experiment, demonstrating that successful men have good vocabularies, reveals a fact but gives the wrong explanation. Men succeed because they are intelligent, and intelligent men accumulate good vocabularies. It isn't the vocabulary that makes them successful, but the ability to succeed which prompts them to acquire the vocabulary.

Words are the tools we use in thinking. You may have a vague thought before you know the words necessary to express it. But the thought doesn't crystallize and become a definite part of your mental equipment until you learn the words that reveal and measure and interpret it.

Every new word means a new thought and a new capacity for thought. If you understand every word in the dictionary, you could comprehend every thought of which man is now capable.

You may know big words and still be a failure, but your equipment of words must grow as your knowledge does, and knowledge enough will make you a success.

POLITICAL 'DEAL'

CLAIMED BY REECE

Accused Man Says He Diverted Funds for McAlister But Wasn't Repaid.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 27.—(AP) A story of diverting approximately $22,000 from the state insurance department to the 1932 election campaign of Governor Hill McAlister and of a broken political agreement for its repayment was related today by J. L. Reece, accused of stealing $100,000 of bonds held by the department.

Into his testimony before a criminal court jury the former insurance commissioner gave the names of United States Senator Nathan L. Bachman, J. J. Lynch, Chattanooga attorney and law partner of the senator, Paul M. Davis, president of the American National bank, of Nashville, and brother of United States Ambassador-at-Large Norman H. Davis; Vance Alexander, president of the Union Planters' National bank, Memphis; A. V. Louthan, Nashville lawyer, and many others.

Money in Litigation.

It was in August of 1932, the defendant said, that Lynch suggested that funds in the unadjusted back-tax account—money that was in litigation between the insurance department and various insurance companies—be used in the campaign and repaid later by contributions.

An agreement to use $12,000 for this purpose was "reached" and devised, the defendant continued, at a conference in Bachman's home the first Sunday in September, attended by Bachman, who had not at the time been appointed to the senate, Lynch, Reece and B. Carroll Reece, republican congressman from the first district and brother of the former state official.

Congressman Reece, it was testified, merely was present as a witness to the compact, one purpose of which, the defendant related, was to stir republican votes in East Tennessee to McAlister, a democrat. He declared Bachman told McAlister of the "agreement" and reported back that McAlister had confirmed it.

Reece said the "agreement" provided that the back-tax fund was to be disbursed by donations from persons representing companies before the insurance department and obtaining "benefits" therefrom and he was to remain as commissioner until March 15, 1933, instead of being replaced when Governor McAlister was inaugurated in January.

Plan Changed.

But early in January, he continued, the plan was changed. Judge Lynch and Blain Maxwell, Memphis lawyer, advised him, Reece said, that "power interests" had contributed $100,000 to cover the insurance department deficit and other deficits of the McAlister primary and election campaigns and that this was to be arranged "through an exchange of bonds and transfer of that would make it a blind donation."

One of the reasons for the aid of the "power interests," the defendant related, was that they were expected to secure a vacancy in the United States senate by the appointment of Cordell Hull to the cabinet, which was forecast, and the slating of Judge Bachman to the appointment.

Reece said he delivered $12,000 in cash, including $500 of his personal funds, to Louthan in October, 1932, and that Louthan, as secretary of the "power interests," had given him $100,000 of bonds and transferred the McAlister organization in the first district and "put salt on the tails of the republicans so we could catch them in November for Mr. McAlister."

ROLE OF CONSPIRATOR

DENIED BY BACHMAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Senator Bachman, democrat, Tennessee, said today the statement of J. L. Reece, former Tennessee insurance commissioner, non-fatal at Nashville for a conspiracy of $100,000 in bonds from his department, that Bachman was party to an agreement to use $12,000 of tax money for campaign funds, was a "deliberate and malicious falsehood."

amendments probably would be delayed until next week.

In asking for adoption of his amendment, Borah said President Roosevelt "entertains the view we have gone beyond what is reasonable and fair" and contended the continuing of the pay cut on higher salaries would "more than make up" for the senate's decision to give Spanish War veterans 90 per cent instead of 75 per cent.

Crisis.

"We are passing through a great crisis and we are not through by any means," Borah said. "The senate and the house are passing more than $8,000,000 in enjoying salaries in excess of that enjoyed by 90 per cent of the people in the country today."

Senator Robinson, democrat, leader, asked Borah if that was so, why he did not make the pay cut extend below the $

Dr. Ruth Dean Takes Stand, Denies Poisoning Kennedy

GREENWOOD, Miss., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Breaking the silence which she had consistently maintained since her arrest last August, Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, handsome 36-year-old child specialist, faced her murder trial jury from the witness stand today and made a flat denial of the state charge that she poisoned Dr. John Preston Kennedy, her admirer, with a whisky highball.

Austere and calm, testifying in her own defense in a soft and unraised voice, Dr. Dean told the jury that Kennedy had divorced his wife and sought to marry her, giving her a diamond ring which she wore for nearly two years; and that he had threatened to kill her when she broke off the engagement in order to marry another man.

Her fiancé, she said, was Captain Franklin C. Maul, ship pilot of Lewes, Delaware, adding that their marriage plans were broken up by her arrest for Kennedy's death last August.

After she had been on the stand for more than an hour, Defense Attorney Dick Denman put a blunt question.

"Dr. Dean," he said, "I want you to tell this jury whether you ever gave Dr. John Preston Kennedy a drink of whisky containing bichloride of mercury poison?"

Smiling, her hands held easily in her lap, the witness turned in her chair to face the jury.

"I did not," she said emphatically.

"Where were you on the night of July 27, 1933, when Kennedy is supposed to have been given a drink of poisoned whisky?"

"I was at home,"

"The state has charged the two held a midnight tryst at the clinic that night."

"Did you tell Dr. Kennedy you were going to marry Captain Maul?" Denman pursued.

"Yes, on July 19."

"Did he make any threat when you told him?"

"Yes," Dr. Dean paused for a moment and then added: "He had been drinking. He said if he had a gun he'd kill me both. He said he was depressed, that I couldn't do it."

"When and where was the last time you saw Dr. Kennedy?"

"On the night of July 25, on my porch. That was the last time I saw him. He said, 'I remember, I just won't let you go.'"

Business in the town of Greenwood was virtually suspended this afternoon when word spread that Dr. Dean was ready to take the stand and hundreds of the curious, unable to gain access to the courthouse building, milled about the adjacent square as she testified.

Scores of women pressed into the courtroom early in the day and held places of vantage, straining forward to catch every word the low-voiced witness uttered. Squads of deputies stood duty in the courthouse corridors to clear the crush sufficiently to allow entry and exit of attorneys.

Dr. Dean, chic in brown silk and black fur, a tight-fitting straw turban pulled down over her high forehead and dark hair, appeared not to notice. As she testified, her large gray eyes swept the packed courtroom indifferently.

AMOS 'N' ANDY TO GIVE SIX SHOWS SATURDAY

All of Atlanta is preparing to welcome to radio's greatest personalities Amos 'N' Andy, who arrive in the city Saturday to start a personal-appearance engagement at the Georgia theater for one week.

The royal party of the welcome, however, is the manner in which thousands of Atlantans and out-of-city people will flock to the theater to see their favorite stars of radio and in action.

In addition to the usual program of doing the characters of just plain Amos 'N' Andy, the popular team will include in their act on the stage characterizations of Brother Crawford, Lightning, Kingfish and many others.

They, of course, do these characters themselves, but the manner in which they do it will be quite interesting.

Plans for five shows per day have been changed somewhat for the opening day, Saturday, at which time the theater will offer six shows. Instead of opening the box office at 11 o'clock, the usual daily time, it will open at 9:45 Saturday morning, with the first performance starting at 10 a. m.

Shows on Saturday will be continuous from that point on. Unless the schedule is changed, four shows will be offered Sunday, with five shows per day starting on Monday and running the balance of the week. A popular admission scale has been worked out for the entire week, but no seats will be reserved.

In addition to the personal appearance of Amos 'N' Andy, the program will include a high-class feature picture, "Hold That Girl," starring James Dunn and Claire Trevor, and as an added stage attraction, the Ozark Mountaineers, five Billy Billies, who have scored quite a hit over WSB.

'Aggie Appleby' Opens Run at Rialto Today

"Aggie Appleby, Maker of Men," a new and clever screen production, with Charles Farrell, Wynne Gibson and Zasu Pitts in the principal roles, opens a three-day engagement at the Rialto theater today.

It is the story of a quiet and retiring young Bostonian who goes to New York to learn how to be "reasonably tough" in order to please his fiancée. There he meets "Aggie Appleby," a hard-boiled product of the East Side, who not only succeeds in making him over, but also, makes a new man out of her fighting, gangster boy friend.

William Gargan does a splendid piece of work as the gangster, while Wynne Gibson is the tough girl. Charles Farrell, the Bostonian, and Zasu Pitts a chambermaid in a New York boarding house.

Clever short subjects complete the new Rialto program, which will run for three days, making way on Saturday for the Frank Capra super-production, "It Happened One Night," with Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert.

VOTE ON VET PENSIONS EXPLAINED BY GEORGE

Georgia Senator Holds 75 Per Cent Return to Former Soldiers Sufficient.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Senator George, of Georgia, Walsh, of Massachusetts, and Connolly, of Texas, in a joint statement have explained their vote on Spanish War veterans' pensions. They are democratic members of the veterans' subcommittee of the senate finance committee.

The statement, dated yesterday, said: "The Byrns amendment with respect to the rates of Spanish War veterans' pensions which was defeated today and which we supported was the result of several conferences with the administration and we supported the amendment because we had every assurance that if adopted it would be accepted by the administration and become law."

"It provided for the immediate reinstatement on the pension rolls of practically all Spanish War pensioners at rates not less than 75 per cent of pensions which they were drawing prior to the enactment of the economy law."

"It represented the maximum concession we were able to obtain and the most generous provision for the Spanish War veterans which the administration was willing to concede. It represented tremendous liberalization of the drastic provisions of the economy act in so far as it relates to the Spanish War veterans."

"In view of our negotiations and the liberality of the concessions obtained we felt it duty bound to oppose any amendments which exceeded the 75 per cent rate."

CWA HEAD DISCOUNTS 'FLA. RIOT' RUMORS

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Officials today expressed fears that CWA workers in Wakulla county were likely to riot because of the methods used by Walter Page, county administrator, in laying off men, but Page said he "hadn't heard anything about it."

H. S. Anders, district CWA engineer, told the committee "the ugly situation down there now may mount to a riot that will seriously damage the work unless something is done quickly." He suggested that Page be removed and an outsider sent into the county to direct the program.

SUIT FOR $500,000,000 FILED BY BONDHOLDERS

National Surety, Greyling Realty Corporation, Others Named Defendants.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A suit to recover for bondholders property and mortgages in many parts of the country constituting security for $500,000,000 worth of mortgage bonds guaranteed by the National Surety Company, was started in federal court today.

Federal Judge John C. Knox signed an order requiring State Insurance Superintendent George S. Van Schaick as rehabilitator for the surety company, and 50 trust and mortgage companies to show cause March 2 why the surety company, the Greyling Realty Corporation and the National Realty Management Company should not be declared insolvent and equity receivers appointed.

The suit, brought by John J. Miller, holder of some $100,000 of the bonds, seeks to have turned over to the receivers for the protection of the 15,000 security holders all collateral held by the trust companies and all property received by Van Schaick as rehabilitator.

The bill also asks that the receivers be empowered to exchange the bonds for those of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. It alleges that the mortgagees are 11,000 small home owners in 35 states and that "because of the complicated, commingled and confused conditions of the trusts, they are unable to save their homes from loss by foreclosure" and that they are "unable to avail themselves of the advantages of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation act of 1933 because of the great confusion in records, titles and data, and confused and commingled subordinate liens."

Henry B. Troutman, attorney, and William Matthews, trust officer of the Fulton National bank, were appointed receivers here for the Greyling Realty Corporation several months ago. The receivers are represented by the law firm of Little, Powell, Reid & Goldstein. Several million dollars' worth of the bonds are held in Atlanta.

ARISTOCRAT MILK IS USED AT SCHOOL

Featuring the purity and richness of the product, and the unusual features of its health safeguards and service, products of the Aristocrat Dairy Products Company are being used in demonstrations at The Constitution Cooking School which opened Tuesday.

The milk from the farms under Aristocrat supervision is sold in nearly all Quality Service Stores, the group sponsoring the school.

Aristocrat, the largest dairy products company in the south, is a new concern to be chartered following the purchase of the former Pedigree Dairies, Inc., and now is under complete local ownership.

The company is the same that operated Pedigree as a subsidiary of the United States Dairies Products Company in Philadelphia, and is headed by B. B. George, a leading dairyman of the south for the past decade.

Other officers include his two brothers, J. Talmadge George, secretary; E. Tarpley George, general manager, and R. B. Whitlock, vice president and general sales manager.

Three of the officers are members of a dairying family, who have grown up in the business and on Georgia farms, and Mr. Whitlock, a former Virginian, is a pioneer in the milk pasteurizing business in Atlanta.

Aristocrat milk is triple checked for purity, richness, and food value, and the company employs every known safeguard to health in producing the milk without losing any of its richness of taste and high food value.

Aristocrat milk is produced with the most up-to-date methods, and all of the steps in its production are safeguarded for health and purity by technicians and skilled workers with records of long service in food and dairying inspection.

Aristocrat milk tests begin at the farm, where all the employees and herds must pass rigid physical examinations, and the product is tested in the laboratory before pasteurization and after it has been finished for delivery.

Features of its service and its content will be brought out at the cooking school, including the use of the cream-top bottle which has found such favor with housewives throughout the city and surrounding territory where deliveries are made by the fast fleet of 35 Aristocrat trucks.

"There is a real story back of every bottle of Aristocrat milk," Mr. George pointed out. "We know, and many people will learn, that our milk, coming from the finest and most reliable producers in the raw form, is given unusual and 'foot-proof' tests before and after pasteurization."

"We have modern methods, modern workers, and modern equipment. We have created a demand for a finer dairy product, and true to our promises made we are ourselves living up to and beyond that standard."

"People nowadays want more than rich, creamy milk. They want richness, milk that they have confidence in and high in food value content. They must be certain, and we are glad to put our milk on demonstration at any time, to submit it to any tests, and give to the public at any time our methods of production."

"The present day is a far cry from the old days of the milkmaid and the tin pail. People have learned about bacteria, about vitamins, and about a myriad of germs which could creep into milk but which cannot remain in Aristocrat milk."

Aristocrat milk is widely distributed throughout Atlanta and suburbs, with central distributing points augmenting the service offered by the home delivery, the numerous stores which handle the product, and the delivery direct on call from the central plant.

Sales Tax Opponents Delay Recall Action

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Petitions for the recall of the Birmingham city commission to prevent a 1 per cent sales tax will remain in circulation despite the commission's action today in postponing enactment of the ordinance for one week.

The commission in a 2-to-1 decision today postponed action on the sales tax ordinance, while citizens sought a new method of financing the city or a referendum on the revenue measure.

Later the steering committee of the citizens' anti-consumers' sales tax committee voted to keep the petitions in circulation until next Tuesday night.

It was announced today that the petitions had more than 11,000 names on them, although only 5,000 are necessary for a recall election.

Britain Offered Bermuda Islands On Debt, McFadden Tells House

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Congress was told Monday by Representative McFadden, republican, Pennsylvania, that at the famous "log conference" between Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, and President Hoover at the latter's Rapidan camp, Hoover refused to accept the Bermuda islands in part payment of England's war debt to this country.

Describing such a transaction as "nothing new," McFadden suggested that France and the United States agree on a transfer of the Marquesas islands to the United States in cancellation of France's overdue debt payments. He also urged that a similar deal be negotiated with England and Australia for the Admiralty islands or the Solomon islands.

"Some years ago Ramsay MacDonald, premier of England, made an historic trip to the United States, during which he engaged in a famous secret conversation with the then President Herbert Hoover while both were sitting upon a log at the Rapidan camp," McFadden told the house.

"The subject of that conversation has been one of our historic mysteries ever since. There have been many surmises and speculations as to what was said, but the veil of silence has remained unlifted until today. I have been told the subject of that conversation and I believe the time has come to make it public. I shall do so now.

"The subject of that conversation was the arranging of some adjustment of the British debt to the United States that should relieve Britain of at least a part of the cash outlay involved. I am told that Mr. MacDonald offered to transfer the Bermuda islands to the United States in part payment of the British debt, and that after some consideration Mr. Hoover declined the offer. I have been told the alleged reason for Mr. Hoover's declination, but I feel that he should have the opportunity to state that reason himself if he wishes to do so."

McFadden also charged that "a deliberate and sustained effort is being made" to force the United States into a war with Japan.

"Enmity is being deliberately provoked between the two nations—and

London Hearing Denied To Hunger Marchers

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(UP)—A proposal that thousands of "hunger marchers" and communist sympathizers be permitted to lay their grievances before the house of commons was rejected by that parliamentary body tonight.

By 270 to 52, commons voted down a motion for a deputation of the marchers to lay their case before the house. Prime Minister MacDonald or the cabinet.

The capital was uneasy as the visitors had said they would depart until commons had heard their protests against unemployment legislation pending in parliament.

provoked for the benefit of neither the United States nor Japan," he asserted. "It is just another move on the international chessboard. . . . England's intelligent selfishness—which is nothing more or less than the sense of self-preservation—sees a new peril facing her. She would defend her own history if she did not now play the old game that she has won so many times in the past."

"Here stand two rivals for English supremacy in world trade—the United States and Japan. If fate, with a little assistance from propaganda, should rule that these two rivals of wise old England should destroy each other's naval and commercial strength by conflict with each other, England would stand to recover the trade and ocean carriage she has lost."

"Would it be any wonder if she should look with at least tolerance upon the prospect of a conflict which would serve to strengthen her by weakening in England the factor that she is bound to the United States by ties of blood and to Japan by ties of alliance?"

McFadden suggested the acquisition of the Marquesas, Admiralty and Solomon islands because, he said, it is "imperative" that this country have "desirable stepping stones" across the Pacific to preserve America's foreign trade with the orient.

MODERATION SEEN IN WEATHER TODAY

New York Digs For Under Fresh Snow Blanket as U. S. Shivers.

By the Associated Press.

Zero and near-zero gripped most of the nation north of the Ohio river Tuesday as the chilly respite from four days of storm. Forecasters, however, declared it was the passing fling, and promised moderation Wednesday.

First to thaw out was the Rocky mountain and northern plains regions, where the mercury shot up as fast as it had fallen. At Havre, Mont., the thermometers gained 50 degrees in 24 hours, and stopped at 36 above.

The blizzard which had whirled nine inches of snow down on New York city moved on to the Canadian seaboard, and 41,000 more snow shovellers joined the army already at work digging the Empire City out.

The cold was intensified in the south, where relief workers aided the victims of Sunday's tornado. Greensboro, N. C., began taking stock of blizzard damage and said that the storm freeze-up of its history had cost hundreds of thousands of dollars.

First reports came out of another hard-hit city, Winston-Salem, N. C., still cut off from the world. A short-wave radio message said cooking gas was short; and put the storm damage at a million dollars.

A new shock of cold hit southern Illinois. The mercury dropped to 28 below at Jacksonville, Ill., far colder than Fairbanks, or Nome, Alaska.

Bright, clear cold prevailed in the middle west and the east, and army fliers took the mail through from all bases.

The bitter cold added a scattering of fatalities to the heavy toll recorded in the last four days. In Pittsburgh, working in icy conditions, rescue crews turned up the debris of the latest of a series of tragedies—the wreck of a Pittsburgh-Akron passenger train. The ninth body was found, and the toll of the series of accidents mounted to nearly 90.

WILLIAM F. M'GEE PASSES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Death divulged the secret of William F. McGee, whose name made the headlines in the heyday of the bucket shop a decade ago.

Penniless and broken, McGee died in a hospital last night, under an assumed name. It was not until police got to checking fingerprints early today that he was identified as the man who went to prison with Edward M. Fuller back in 1927 as the result of a financial bucket-shop trial.

McGee, although he must have suspected he was dying of atrophy of the liver, kept the secret of his identity to the last. Police records said he was wanted in Chicago in a "marriage racket" and also in Waukegan, Ill.

250,000 Unemployed Register in Georgia

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—A letter from the Georgia director of the national re-employment service, stating that 250,000 normally employed persons now without work had registered in the state, was read into the senate record today by Senator George, democrat, Georgia.

The figure made no deduction for persons given temporary relief on civil works projects.

Signed by Lincoln McConnell, the state director, the letter said 318,000 persons had registered, but this figure included 30,500 farmers who had tilled their fields during the year, 8,000 housewives and 23,000 young persons who never had worked at a regular job.

George said that if the ratio between the unemployed and the total population of Georgia were used as a basis the unemployed of the country now would approximate 10,000,000.

Argentine Bankers Escape With $1,250,000

In the strong boxes were exactly 96 pesos (about $32) and a director's note for 50,000 pesos (approximately $16,670).

Officers called it the most extensive swindle in the two years Argentine has had currency exchange control.

Police seized books of the bank, the Banco Comercial del Plata, but believed officials had fled the country.

U. S. LEADING WORLD IN CRUISER BUILDING

Japan Constructing Crafts With Heavy Armaments, Says London Report.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—An official admiralty report Monday set forth indications that the United States leads the powers in the number of cruisers under construction or planned.

Japan is building cruisers with unusually heavy armaments, and France is completing the biggest and most powerful fleet of destroyers, the document showed.

It was pointed out that since battleships remain at fixed lines under the Washington treaty, the activities of naval powers in building auxiliary craft are significant.

According to the admiralty report, the United States has 11 cruisers building and six more projected; the British commonwealth has 10 building, contracts for three of which have not yet been awarded. France and Italy each have six building, while Japan has two building and two more projected.

In completed cruisers the British commonwealth has 50, the maximum accepted under the London naval treaty. The United States has 21, Japan 31, Italy 24, France 15, Russia 6, and Germany 8.

Japan's two cruisers under construction, the Mogami and Mijuna are of a new type. Of 8,500 tons displacement, they are designed to have a speed of 33 knots and carry 15 six-inch guns, eight five-inch anti-aircraft guns and 12 torpedo tubes. The two projected are of the same displacement.

The Japanese armament compares with a maximum of eight main guns in corresponding British six-inch gun vessels.

France, the report continues, has developed a type of destroyer flotilla leader faster and more heavily armed than any in the British navy. She has 24 of these vessels built and seven building. They range between 2,400 and 2,600 tons, with a speed of 36 knots.

Because he objected to the administration of a dose of medicine for a cold, "Pat" Thompson, 18, of 937 Glen Arden way, ran away from home at 9 o'clock Tuesday night by leaping from a back window.

This was the story told police by the youth's mother, Mrs. J. C. Martin, who asked their assistance in locating him.

37 knots, and carry guns of a maximum caliber of 5.5 inches. Corresponding British flotilla leaders built total 18. They are armed generally with four of five 4.7-inch guns, and mostly have a speed not exceeding 35 1/2 knots.

Boy, 10, Confesses Starting Arsenal Fire

Starting Arsenal Fire

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 27.—(AP)—A 10-year-old boy, Cecil Kiper, of Springfield, today confessed that he started the $300,000 fire that destroyed the state arsenal. February 18, Governor Horner announced.

The lad told the governor and State Fire Marshal Sherman Coultas, they said, that he had not meant to start a big blaze but admitted he threw a lighted paper bag against the stage curtain in the building auditorium. The fire started from this spread quickly over the structure destroying it despite the efforts of the entire Springfield fire department to save it.

State Seeks To Establish Motive for Killing of Young Woman.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Into the background of murder today the state etched a picture of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynkoop, hard pressed for payment of notes and obligations, begging for a little more time from her creditors. State witnesses today supplied a motive the prosecution desired to establish for the slaying of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, the realization of her life insurance policies.

Then, in the foreground of its case, the state presented the testimony of a physician that Rheta died not from chloroform but from a bullet wound. Defense attorney W. W. Smith failed to shake the testimony of Dr. Thomas L. Dwyer, former coroner's physician.

With the presentation of Dr. Dwyer's testimony, the state neared completion of its case against the 63-year-old physician and mother of three grown children. Tomorrow morning the defense was expected to call its first witnesses.

Prosecutor Charles S. Dougherty asked Dr. Dwyer whether the girl was dead before or after the girl was dead.

"The bullet was fired while the individual was alive," said Dr. Dwyer. Through his testimony the state prepared the way for arguing that the statement of Dr. Wynkoop, later repudiated, that she fired a bullet into Rheta's body after the girl had succumbed to an overdose of chloroform was in part true.

The state, however, will insist that the bullet was fired before the chloroform had had a lethal effect.

Warmer Weather Due After Drop to 16 Today

Although a minimum temperature in the neighborhood of 16 degrees was expected in Atlanta this morning by the weather bureau, the day will warm up quickly, the thermometer reaching the forties by afternoon. Fair weather is expected.

Tuesday's minimum of 13 degrees was only one degree higher than the forecast. The day was clear and cold, the thermometer going only to 35 degrees. North Georgia was colder Tuesday than Montana, and freezing weather was felt at Thomasville, with 28 degrees. Jacksonville showed 34 degrees.

February probably will establish a record as the coldest February since 1912, with a probable average temperature of 41 degrees, or 4.3 below normal.

Tennessee had a low of 8 degrees Tuesday in Nashville and 6 in Knoxville and freezing weather was reported from Louisiana. But today's readings in those states are expected to be higher. A low minimum, however, is expected generally in the south this morning, followed by warmer conditions.

British Arms Plan Accepted by Italy

ROME, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Italy has agreed to accept the British disarmament memorandum, well-informed circles said tonight, as a basis for future arms discussions.

Germany already has agreed to do likewise and Captain Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal and roving arms expert, will leave tomorrow to ask France to accept it.

It was learned on reliable authority that as a result of Captain Eden's conferences with statesmen in Berlin and Rome, Germany, Italy and Great Britain are in accord on what should be done to prevent an armament race.

So back until 1928 I must go to

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

By H. A. CARTER

These alternating spells of warm and cold weather are just playing havoc with my studies on frog breeding cycles. One of the more important points in life history studies is the first spring appearance. When rainfall plays such a large part in determining this first appearance, and the warmth following the rain must be rather extended to bring on the breeding season, I am afraid that the poor old batrachians will never get their minds clear on what to do until the weather settles down.

It may be that the bird studies will suffer, too, although the warm-blooded animals are much less subject to the whims of what Dr. Beebe calls "Mild Lord Weather."

It all boils down to this: what are we to consider the normal for the spring appearance of these cold-blooded animals, when every season of the year is usually unusual? Weather, so far as I can tell is never normal. And after all, it comes back to the fact that one must have sufficient data on which to base conclusions.

One reader took exception to my statement that two cases of coral snake bite terminating fatally constituted a mortality rate of 100 per cent. He called me by telephone to register this complaint. What I meant to be delicately veiled sarcasm was evidently completely hidden. Only the averages of years of study are worthy of serious consideration, and then only as approximations. One of the greatest causes of error in science is the lack of sufficient evidence.

And that leads me to quote a professor of biology who outlines the scientific method in this fashion. Observe carefully and completely, neglecting nothing, then compare accurately. Finally, draw the warranted conclusions. Then check it!

Controlled experiment can do no more for us than can careful observation.

So back until 1928 I must go to state that Psendacris makes its first annual appearance in the first week of January. Is that enough? No, I must also say that there is a decided correlation between the rainfall and that appearance and the succeeding temperatures. In fact, the little frogs will not appear unless the temperature is above 50 degrees Fahrenheit. We can't be content with saying that Crickets first appear on January 5. We must add 1934.

BOARD DELAYS ACTION ON FERTILIZER RATES

Rehearing of the question of Georgia intrastate fertilizer freight rates was completed in short order Tuesday by the public service commission but the rate-making body's decision was reserved pending a study of the record.

Several weeks ago cuts averaging about 27 per cent were ordered by the commission but were enjoined in federal court.

The order at that time was issued before shippers and the public had been given opportunity to appear and before there had been any exhaustive cross-examination of railroad witnesses.

One point raised by the railroads in asking for the temporary injunction which they obtained was that the record of the case had not been completed. Judge E. Marvin Underwood, of the federal district court here, who heard the case, commented on that point in making his decision.

The court order was only a temporary injunction but the commission withdrew its rate order without going into a hearing on issuance of a permanent injunction to remedy that defect.

R. J. Doss, of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, who testified concerning fertilizer rates during a general investigation of Georgia freight rates, was cross-examined Tuesday at considerable length.

Testimony by the shippers and the public was requested by the commission but none was offered.

Little that was new was elicited in the examination of Doss.

Cross-examination of railroad witnesses in the general investigation of all Georgia intrastate rates will be resumed Monday, March 5. The railroad's direct testimony was completed several weeks ago.

MOSCOW HAILS THREE BULGARIANS FREED BY BERLIN

MOSCOW, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The three Bulgarian communists acquitted of firing the German reichstag building in Berlin and expelled from Germany this morning arrived here by airplane early this evening.

Several thousand cheering Russians greeted them at the snow-covered airport.

The Bulgarians—Georgi Dimitroff, Wassil Taneff and Blagoi Popoff—who were made Russian citizens while yet in jail in Berlin, were cheered by names.

Some of the cheers that were heard were: "Hurrah for Dimitroff! Long live the red front! Hall the world revolution!"

A milling mob of enthusiasts all but crushed the smiling men when they alighted from the tri-motored plane.

"Everything is well!" Dimitroff cried in Russian as he descended into the arms of the crowd.

His shout brought renewed cheering and he was hoisted on to the shoulders of high officials of the communist international while a band blared out the internationale.

Hebrew School Sponsors Ball On March 6, at Shrine Mosque

Unusual brilliancy will mark the forty-fourth annual Purim ball to be given under the auspices of the United Hebrew school Tuesday evening, March 6, in the Egyptian ballroom of the Shrine Mosque.

Committees including 50 men and women headed by I. J. Paradise, general chairman, and Mrs. Mendel Boorstein, ticket chairman, have been working on the plans for several weeks. Entertainment will be furnished by singers and dancers from current stage shows. Resembling a merry carnival will be the colorful booths that will line the walls of the ballroom. Included will be a fortune teller's tent.

Children in costume will compete for prizes in a masquerade, and dancing will be enjoyed to the music of two popular orchestras. Dating back to the hoop skirts and horse-drawn carriages of the 1890's, the Purim ball has always been the center of widespread interest among Atlanta Jews.

In addition to Mr. Paradise other officers of the Purim ball include Ralph Willner, first vice chairman; Mrs. S. O. Katz, second vice chairman; David Gershon, secretary, and Joseph Goldberg, treasurer.

NANCY PAGE

Children Seldom Lie Intentionally But Tell Things They Imagine

BY FLORENCE LA GANKE

Joan and Peter were quarreling and getting angry and more excited. Nancy tried to keep from interfering, but when the commotion grew too great she said she had to step in.

"Does anybody in this house want to help me sort out the buttons?" This was her opening sally. Nancy had a large assortment of buttons which she kept in a series of compartments in a small drawer. She had learned that this drawer could be overturned and all the buttons be mixed. The accident seemed so logical that the children never suspected it was a ruse to get the interest in something else other than a quarrel. Nancy purposely bought a few colorful buttons every so often to add variety to her collection.

The two children ran to help her. They sat down and Nancy outlined her method of sorting buttons.

As they worked she soon had the children talking. It seems that Peter had told a most imaginative tale about five drawers that met him on the street and gave him strawberries. Joan insisted the story was not true. She had called Peter a "fibber" and finally in the heat of the argument—"a liar." She began to tell her Aunt Nancy how absurd such a story was.

Nancy gave Joan a knowing look and wink as much as to say, "just wait until you hear my story." So she began with 20 buttons which had offered her watermelon. She made the story so ridiculous that even Peter grinned. He saw his mother had outdone him in imagination. He had not been lying. He was merely telling a thing he would like to have happen to him. His mother's story was bigger and better and he saw in her a companion spirit. And the ugly names "liar" and "fibber" were forgotten and forgotten. (Copyright, 1934, by The Constitution.)

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

(Posed by Shirley Grey)

By MIGNON.

A young girl writes and wants to know what kind of cosmetics younger women should use and particularly what kind of perfume. No doubt, she is a young woman of taste and knows that a too much made-up and too much perfumed young woman would not be attractive in the least. If ever there is a time when young women should use the least possible makeup and perfume and all artificial aids to good looks it is when they are young and have the natural beauty that is only ruined by artificiality.

That doesn't mean that a girl shouldn't care for her complexion. The best way to insure a good skin when you are older is to pay some attention to it when you are young.

The first step is cleanliness. Even young girls sometimes have very dry skins. They should not scrub their faces with soap and water and then neglect to rinse thoroughly. Sometimes if the skin is excessively dry the cleansing should be done entirely with a cleansing cream. The face can be made perfectly clean this way. It is better to use soap and water on your neck, however, because the cream gets into your hair, and that is not so easy to get out without a shampoo.

Now, after cleaning the face use a good cold cream. It's a fine thing to do in summer and it's a necessary care for winter. The cold winds and the air in steam-heated apartments do things to your skin that are anything but flattering.

The care of a girl's skin is the same as that for an older woman except that she is fortunate in not having to do quite so many things for herself in order to fight off lines and wrinkles.

After the cream has been patted into the skin to soften it—for that is what cold cream does—wipe off with tissues. If you don't use them your household linen will soon be ruined. The city grime and the cold cream make a combination that even the most severe laundry can do nothing about. The tissues can be tossed into the waste basket beside your dressing table. They are sanitary. Linen used more than once is not.

After the cream has been removed use a tiny speck of finishing cream to hold the powder. Practically all girls use powder. They can't use cream without powdering afterward. If they do they will have shiny noses, and any girl who cares about her looks is willing to let her eyes and teeth do the shining.

If a girl doesn't use lipstick she should wipe off her lips after powdering, with something that will keep them soft. If she does use rouge it should, of course, be applied before the powder. I can tell you something very nice with which to clear the lips of powder if you don't use lipstick.

After using powder brush out the eyebrows with a small brush. I like a tiny toothbrush best. The eyebrow brushes are so very thin and pencil line brows are now seldom indulged in. After brushing the eyebrows take a piece of cotton and wet it with a skin-toning lotion or a liquid cleanser and run it over the brows. That takes out every trace of powder.

Now, you see "Miss Z." this does not differ much from an adult facial. If a young woman has plenty of oil in her skin and doesn't care to use any powder or other makeup all she needs to do is wash her face with soap and water and then apply a lotion that is softening, but does not leave the face greasy.

IT'S SPRINGTIME FOR YOUNGER FASHIONABLES. Today's little dress is carried out in an old-fashioned calico printed dress.

The plants of the skirt are arranged to form a box-plait effect and sway so prettily in motion. The design of this little dress is so adaptable to ideas of your own you can use the same pattern to make several different dresses. Make it all of a printed wash silk or of solid-colored pale blue, green, or rose cotton fabric. Or you can make the wing-like sleeve effect of a harmonizing or contrasting material—and you'll have still another new and very exciting dress. Really so lovely for afternoons as for mornings, and expresses safety in no small way.

Mrs. Julia Wall gave a humorous reading, "On the Train to Byromville." A dance, the minuett, was given in costume by Mrs. R. D. Sherrill, president of the Faith P. T. A.; Mrs. S. C. Roby, Mrs. Julia Wall and Mrs. John Faith Sr. Miss Rudine Daniel gave a reading, "When Grandma Dances the Minuet."

Mrs. Kiser Honors New York Visitor.

Among the interesting social affairs of Tuesday was the luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club in compliment to Mrs. Edgar Mark Williams, of New York, the fated guest of Mrs. William W. Owens, at her Andrews driveway residence.

Invited to meet Mrs. Williams were 14 friends of the hostess among the matron contingent of society. Centering the beautifully appointed table was a crystal chandelier filled with fragrant spring blossoms in the pastel tints. Crystal candlesticks held tall yellow tapers. The table was placed in a private dining room of the club.

Mrs. Williams, who formerly resided in Atlanta, renewed many friendships and was extensively entertained during her visit to Mrs. Owens.

She left last evening for Augusta, where she will spend some time at the Bon Air-Vanderbilt before returning to New York.

FRIENDSHIP CHAIN. PATTERN 5006. Friendship chain is one of those particularly gratifying scrap quilts. The more varied the scraps you use, the gayer—friendlier—more effective your quilt will be. And isn't it an ideal friendship quilt? Why any number of friends could contribute the blocks and the variety would add to the beauty of the quilt. It would, of course, be effective to keep the center stripe of the same material throughout, but even this is a matter of choice.

Mrs. Walker, first vice president of the federation, presided. Other plans and affairs attendant upon the convention were discussed and will be announced at an early date.

By resolution Mrs. R. Murdoch Walker received thanks for splendid service in carrying on in lieu of the president, Mrs. Oscar Palmour, during a number of weeks and was officially appointed to serve the Atlanta Federation as acting president, with all authority of president during the enforced absence from duty of Mrs. Palmour. Mrs. Norman Sharp was elected as vice president to serve until the meeting of the Atlanta Federation in May, with rank next to Mrs. Walker. This resolution and appointment will in no way affect the service of present vice presidents of the Atlanta Federation. Mesdames Wright Bryan and Ernest Morrison. Formal expressions of sympathy were voted for Mrs. Oscar Palmour, president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, in the loss of her husband, February 1, 1934. Beside the assurance that "her grief is ours" from 108 club and several new value member of each of these clubs, Mrs. Palmour was assured that the "Atlanta Federation will await with patience and understanding the time when she may feel sufficient restored to resume her active duties as president."

The Capitol View Club, Mrs. Jack Kilgore, president; the St. Charles Garden Club, Mrs. Reuben Williams, president, and the Atlanta Library Club, Miss Alma Jamison, president, were welcomed as members of the Atlanta Federation.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

BY ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

THE LEAD AGAINST A SLAM

Unquestionably one of the most difficult problems for a bridge player to decide is the correct lead against a slam. Often the success or failure of the contract rests entirely upon the choice of a suit, and sometimes a card in the suit, made by the opening leader. It is difficult, indeed, to lay down any general principles governing the selection of a lead, particularly when the contract is one to take all the tricks, as then the chance of successful defense must, if the bidding has been at all accurate, be remote indeed. However, it can be stated with certainty that probably the worst lead against a slam is a singleton trump. Even if the eventual dummy's hand has supported the declarer's trump suit, there still remains the possibility that the partner of the leader may have something in the suit that may develop into a trick if the declarer himself has to develop the trumps.

A hand in which the lead of a singleton trump presented the declarer with a grand slam contract occurred in one of the early rounds of the grand national championship match of the United States Bridge Association.

The hand was:

North and South vulnerable.

♠ A K 6 4 2
 ♥ K Q J 7 4
 ♦ A J
 ♣ 7 5 3
 ♠ 8 5
 ♥ K 10 6 5
 ♦ 9 6 2
 ♣ 10 7 5 4

The bidding: (Figures explain bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South West North East
 1♣ Pass 2♠ (1) Pass
 3NT Pass 4♥ Pass
 4NT (2) Pass 5NT (3) Pass
 6♠ (4) Pass 7♠ (5) Pass
 Pass Pass

1—With four and one-half honors, of course, a forcing takeout is made.

2—South has support for both suits bid by North and feels sure that although he has no distributional values the hand must produce a slam.

3—Showing the remaining aces.

4—South does not wish to bid the grand slam directly and now spades in preference to hearts as the stronger suggestion to his partner to bid again if he holds any additional values.

5—North should now bid seven hearts, knowing his partner to have the ace; but he feels sure of the solidity of the spade suit. Since he holds a fourth spade, he discards a losing heart in case that suit should not break.

East, it must be admitted, had a rather difficult choice of leads. However, there was no excuse for the lead which he chose—namely, the spade ten. With this hint as to the possible unfavorable distribution of the trump suit, North should have played any other lead, as after the play of the queen of spades and the kind of spades, it would have been too late to finesse against West, knowing as West would have covered the nine, and the seven of trumps would have become the setting trick.

TOMORROW'S HAND. If South opens the bidding with one club, what is West's best overall?</

INSTALLMENT XXI.

"Oh!" Sylvia clasped her hands in admiration. "Madame, you are the most beautiful woman I have ever seen."

"After me, Sylvia," Billie grinned. "We'll say she's the most beautiful blonde."

Charity went over to the long mirror and surveyed herself carefully. She did look grand. The raven black of her shining hair was lovely in contrast with the long sweep of her white tulle gown. It molded to her figure perfectly to below her knees, then flared in great old-fashioned flutes to sweep the floor, a la Mae West.

A worried little frown gathered on her white brow when she thought of Doug. But she quickly put him out of her mind. He hadn't even given her the benefit of a doubt—he staying away from home sulking like a little boy. She'd give him something to worry about—if he would worry. She hoped a little that he would.

By the time Sylvia helped her into the short little tulle evening wrap with the big puffed sleeves, and handed her a wisp of a silken fan, she had made up her mind she was going to have a marvelous time and forget all about her temperamental husband. The clock on the dressing table said 7:30. It was time to meet Batch downstairs.

Billie gave her a final careful looking over and she did the same for her. They made up their minds they had improved on nature as much as possible, and hurried to take the elevator to the lobby. Charity felt delicious little thrills of uncertainty running up and down her spine. Billie sensed her mood and took her arm, to say firmly:

"None of the old inferiority complex, lady, or it's you and me all over town. There won't be two sweller looking dames on Broadway tonight than 'What more do we need?'"

Charity swallowed her fears and grinned. "Ye-yes, ma'am. I ain't skeered."

When the elevator door opened Batch and his friend stood waiting for them. Batch's eyes lighted with delight when he saw Charity, tall and straight and smiling, walking toward him. He felt his heart beating uncomfortably when he took her hand.

"Lovely lady!" He forced the old careless grin. Then he turned to the tall dark young man. "Mrs. Temple, may I introduce Doctor Phillips and Billie Miller, Doctor Phillips."

Billie's heart gave a flip flop of glad surprise. The doctor was all of six feet two and the handsomest dark-haired, blue-eyed male she'd encountered in many a day, even to the dimple in his chin. Dr. Phillips was so smitten with the first look at the stunning model that he felt like a college freshman at his first prom. When he stood staring at Billie boyishly, Batch grinned. "Disappointed Bim? That's the trouble with these blind dates."

The doctor got his bearings and took Billie's arm, freshly. "I knew I'd run into the fat and forty—but come along. Nobody knows he is in town anyway."

It looked as though every one in New York had made up their minds to attend the Casino roof opening. Batch and he would get over it. But again he felt his eyes straying to Charity. He wondered what it would be like to hold her cool, white beauty in his arms. But he could never do that.

Charity had her head off guard looking at Charity. He loved Yanner so long and so much, surely he couldn't stop. It was just a mood he felt his eyes straying to Charity. He wondered what it would be like to hold her cool, white beauty in his arms. But he could never do that.

He saw then that Batch was not taking his eyes off Charity. When she turned and smiled a little half happy smile at Batch, Doug was certain Charity was in love with the handsome doctor. He remembered that Billie had warned him Batch was becoming very interested in Charity—and he hadn't taken it seriously. At that time he'd been certain a man like Batch could never fall in love with a girl like Charity Jones.

It would be rotten of Batch to make Charity care for him—and not care for her in return. He knew the same time and put her hand on Charity's arm, to squeeze it warningly. When Batch saw Doug's face reddened that was the first embarrassing situation. Billie thought faster than she'd ever thought before in her life. Doug looked up. Before he had a chance to show surprise, Billie pounced upon their table.

"Are we late? Howdy, Yanner! We bring your wife as per instructions, Doug. Ain't she scrumptious? Pull up the table, boys."

Two waiters leaped to move the two tables together—and Charity blessed Billie silently. Doug found his voice and jumped up. "Hi! The more the merrier. Set—boys and girls."

Dr. Phillips was enlightened as to the sudden change of table arrangements when Batch said hurriedly, "Miss Blithedale, Dr. Phillips—and Mr. Temple, Dr. Phillips."

Billie felt like laughing out loud when she saw the look on Yanner's face as her eyes lit on the transformation Charity had made in her dress. Then her soft mouth curled up for a second with fury. She caught herself in time to say casually, "How have you been, Charity?"

Charity found herself saying equally casually, "Oh—I've been just lovely. And you?"

"Getting around," Yanner smiled weakly.

Batch felt himself in a mighty tight place although Doug had made it quite plain he didn't care what Charity did. That was before Charity cut her hair and showed what a lovely creature she really was. He looked at Yanner with her blond curls and her weak little rosy mouth, and wondered how Doug could go around with her when he had a wife like Charity. The man must be blind.

Yanner had never known such agony of mind. She mentally compared herself with the tall raven-haired Charity and felt like a school girl. She saw, with a shock, that all eyes were upon Charity and Billie, and it made her furious.

She looked at Doug out of the corner of her eye and saw with a pang, which made her feel ill, that he was looking at Charity as though he had never seen her before.

Every one in the party breathed a sigh of relief when the lights at the tables dimmed and the dance floor lit up for the floor show. It saved the painful job of trying to make conversation. Charity picked up a program and looked at the names of the stars. Maybe that would take a little of the wind out of Yanner's sails, too. For she knew Doug's girl friend was bitterly jealous of the red-haired dancer.

It was a beautiful show, starring some of the biggest of Broadway names. Charity had never seen anything like it before, but Doug scarcely saw it. He found his eyes constantly straying to Charity. The lights swept their way every once in awhile, playing over Charity's shining hair, her finely chiseled face, her soft sweet mouth, her perfect teeth. He caught his breath and wondered how he could ever have been too blind to see her beauty—even in the unbecoming clothes she had worn the day he became his wife. Had his father perhaps seen her really was?

Doug's eyes strayed to Yanner and he studied her closely. It shocked him to see the hatred that came into her eyes when he caught her off guard looking at Charity. He loved Yanner so long and so much, surely he couldn't stop. It was just a mood he felt his eyes straying to Charity. He wondered what it would be like to hold her cool, white beauty in his arms. But he could never do that.

He saw then that Batch was not taking his eyes off Charity. When she turned and smiled a little half happy smile at Batch, Doug was certain Charity was in love with the handsome doctor. He remembered that Billie had warned him Batch was becoming very interested in Charity—and he hadn't taken it seriously. At that time he'd been certain a man like Batch could never fall in love with a girl like Charity Jones.

It would be rotten of Batch to make Charity care for him—and not care for her in return. He knew the doctor's way with women, and it wasn't the sort of way a girl like Charity should be treated. She had been decent—and never done anyone harm. Anyway, she'd been a darn sight better to him than he deserved.

There was the night she'd let Yanner make a fool out of her—and the good-natured way she'd taken her treatment by the crowd at Temple haven that week-end, and then appeared on the beach just in time to save Batch from drowning. She must have loved him then—or she wouldn't have risked her life for him.

Billie and Dr. Phillips were the only two who enjoyed the rest of the evening. Charity's cool exterior hid the inner turmoil of her emotions. It wasn't so easy sitting at the same table with her rival, wondering what she really was to Doug, how soon he'd be asking for a divorce so he could marry the little blond darling of society.

Looking at Charity smiling wistfully around her, Batch knew with a sudden pounding of the blood in his temples that he loved her. He wanted, more than he had ever wanted anything in his life, to take her in his arms and tell her so.

Just before it was time to go home Billie leaned over to say to Charity under her breath, "Oh, darling, isn't he wonderful! I—think I'm in love."

Charity smiled, humoringly. Things didn't happen like that. But wouldn't it be nice if Billie and the good-looking doctor did fall for each other? Billie deserved a home—a good husband who would appreciate her. But there couldn't be any one good enough for her.

Charity was certain the evening would never end. Batch saw how tired she was, and knowing what a strain it must be for her to sit so near to Yanner and Doug and keep up the pretense of having a good time, he said, as if a bright idea had just struck him, "Let's drop around to my digs for a nightcap. She must give him a headache all evening."

The Casino opening was a grand flop—for at least four of its best-dressed patrons.

July, August and September seemed to pass by on wings for Charity. She had never been so busy in her life—and certainly never so happy.

It seemed to Doug that she was never at the Casino. As the weeks went by and October touched the trees at Templehaven and turned them to gold and brown and red, he became more and more nervous as to what Charity was doing.

Since the night he had asked her to go to dinner and the theater and she had stood up, he had never quite gotten up nerve enough to run the risk of her indifference again. Seeing her at the opening of the Casino roof with Batch so soon afterward had certainly not helped his pride.

He turned to the companionship of Yanner with ever-increasing uncertainty. To her frequent question as to when he was going to divorce Charity, Doug begged impatiently for more time. Things like that couldn't be done overnight. A girl like Charity couldn't be thrown away like an old shoe—not after the decent way she had acted since their marriage. There wasn't a thing she had done that would justify his divorcing her.

And as Doug evaded, Yanner became more and more furious. It wasn't easy to answer questions at home as to just how soon the Vandergrifts would be able to get their fingers into the Temple pie. There were many nights when Yanner cried herself to sleep because Doug seemed so cold and indifferent and no longer a slave to her blonde charms. It infuriated her when she saw Charity and how she had changed. She was sure Charity was using every wile possible to lure Doug away from her.

She wouldn't have believed the strange Mrs. Temple capable of using the old method of indifference as a weapon against her. That Charity, thanks to the advice of the worldly-wise Billie, made it a point to make certain Doug only caught glimpses of her.

McGraw's first world champions—Giants of 1905

By William Ritt,
Central Press Sports Editor.

Under McGraw's relentless driving the New York Giants won the pennant in 1904. McGraw was eager to tackle Boston, the American league champs, but no World Series was held. When the Giants won again in 1905, they met the Philadelphia Athletics in a world title series. Christy Mathewson was the hero of that first Giant-Athletic World Series. Big Six, as he was called, shut out the A's three times! Pitcher Joe McGinnity won the other Giant victory. The Giants whipped the Mackmen, four games to one. The 1905 series was the beginning of great but friendly rivalry between John McGraw and Connie Mack, Athletics manager. Twice again McGraw's Giants and Mack's Athletics were to battle for world baseball honors, in 1911 and 1913. Strangely enough these three-time foes were the most successful managers, each in his own league, over a period of more than 30 years. With this great outfit John McGraw reached the pinnacle of baseball in 1905. The team consisted of—front row, left to right: Outfielder Sam Mertes, Pitcher Joe McGinnity, First Baseman Dan McGann, Catcher Jack Warner, Manager—Third Baseman John McGraw, Pitcher Leon Ames, Catcher Frank Bowerman, Second Baseman W. O. Gilbert, Catcher Bill Marshall. Back row, same order: Catcher Roger Bresnahan, Pitcher Hooks Wiltse, Pitcher Luther (Dummy) Taylor, Outfielder George Browne, Third Baseman Art Devlin, Outfielder Harry McCormick, Pitcher Christy Mathewson, Second Baseman Bill Dahlen, Pitcher Claude Elliott, Infielder Sam Strang and Utility Bill Clarke do not appear in the picture. Mathewson, McGinnity, Ames, Wiltse, Taylor, Bresnahan, Bowerman, Devlin, Dahlen and McCormick were among the best players of their time. New York had no team their equal until 1921 when McGraw introduced his four-time champions.

FAMOUS GEORGIA ATHLETES

Carlton Y. Smith, a Tennis Marvel.

It was the summer of 1921. The scene was the grandstand court of the East Lake Country Club. The event was the final round of the southern tennis championship. Two leg-weary tennis players walked slowly off the court toward the clubhouse and that grateful 10-minute rest that comes after the third set. In their ears still lingered that last call from the umpire as the final point of the third set was made. The sets are two to one, Mr. Smith leading.

The reaction to that call in the breasts of those two tennis giants of the southland was probably of two varieties. The younger, Douglas Waters, the crack New Orleans player, still young in the tennis world and with a brilliant future before him on the courts, probably thought it was just another tennis match and that if he could come back and take his opponent's measure it would mean the victory to his large collection. The older, no less a person than Carlton Y. Smith, whose name 15 years ago was a by-word in southern tennis, had far more somber thoughts.

GETTING OLD. Carlton knew that he was getting old. He knew that this was his last championship tourney, and that he already had two legs on that beautiful cup, emblematic of the southern title. He knew that this championship was his last opportunity to win his third leg and gain permanent possession of that trophy. And what was more to the point at that exact minute was that he well knew that those trusty legs which had carried him to countless former triumphs on southern and eastern courts would start but one more set. If that match went to five sets it would be Waters who would be the victor. Everything had to be put into that fourth desperate set.

To those of us who were fortunate enough to see that match, that fourth set will ever stand out in our tennis memories. Carlton came back refreshed, and with all the old-time fire that had made him famous during the past decade. His blistering forehand fairly scorched the court, and his backhand was as true as a plumb line. He went to win his third leg and gain permanent possession of that trophy. And what was more to the point at that exact minute was that he well knew that those trusty legs which had carried him to countless former triumphs on southern and eastern courts would start but one more set. If that match went to five sets it would be Waters who would be the victor. Everything had to be put into that fourth desperate set.

That match marked the climax of Smith's career. It also marked his farewell to championship tennis. It was a fitting end to a most remarkable reign on the courts. A reign that brought him the southern singles title four times, the southern doubles crown once, the Georgia state singles championship many times and countless other titles during his long campaign on the courts. He served, underhand with practically the same motion with which he made his forehand drive. I don't think there was a player in the country with such a serve. It was an effective service, too.

While Carlton carved a niche in the annals of tennis, he was also a great man. He was a comparative old head at the game. If memory serves me right, he was 27 years old before he ever won a championship. But once the charmed circle was entered he was a frequent visitor. His game was essentially a backcourt game. His forehand was his chief weapon, and probably no southern player ever had a better one. He was best in singles, but was also a great doubles player. He was ranked among the leaders in that field during his career.

One novel feature of his game was his economy. The blade vibrates 7,200 times per minute, "whisks the beard off like magic," massaging as it shaves. New, non-irritating shaves; a cool, velvety feeling. No more scratched or irritated skins.

southern tennis which will long stand as a great addition to the development of young players and of southern tennis in general and was for years the member from this section of the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. His opinions and ideas carried great weight and respect in the tennis world and he was a prime favorite with the powers that be in tennis.

Possessing a delightful personality, he was a great addition to any tournament. And every tennis gathering in the south was overjoyed to hear when he had entered a tournament. His hardest game to combat was the steady brand where his opponent was satisfied just to get the ball back in play. Two outstanding defeats from this type of game were from Jeff Hunt, the champion stroke artist, in Atlanta, and the other was at the hands of Pat Winston at Asheville in the summer of 1910.

Carlton now confines his athletic endeavors to golf at which game he is good. But I will wager that many a sunny afternoon when he is touring the East Lake course struggling in the low 80's or maybe in the high 70's he turns a wistful eye toward the red clay courts where once the name of Smith was legion. And maybe instead of his caddy's refrain of "you are out of bounds Mr. Smith," he hears again the umpire's call of "the sets are two to one, Mr. Smith leading."

(Tomorrow: Albert Hill, Georgia Tech's great quarterback.)

Editor's Note: This article on Carlton Smith is contributed to "Famous Athletes" by Whitney Cary, who knew him intimately, reported many of his matches and himself played as a partner of "Hop" Owens during that great era of southern tennis.

PRIMO DEFENDS TITLE TONIGHT

By Edward J. Neil.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—(P)—The Did and Goliath duel of the prize ring, huge Primo Carnera's heavy-weight title defense tomorrow night against little Tommy Loughran, wobbled today before a back hand slap of the elements that have been torturing the east with blizzards and cold for weeks.

Instead of snow, blustery rain dropped down upon Miami to cripple ticket sales and fight preparations as completely as the recent storms tied up New York and New England. To add to the gloom the weatherman predicted that tomorrow night might be still cooler, with the threat of more showers overhanging the situation.

If the bad weather continues the bout probably will be postponed until Thursday night, but the complications that would set in thereby have the Madison Square Garden promoters vowing that the battle will go on unless the situation gets absolutely impossible.

"GATE" IS $30,000.

Only about $30,000 worth of tickets had been sold before the box office attendants joined with everyone else today in just watching it rain. Many of those with reservations had planned to leave here directly after the fight and they were running around in a fine flurry tonight, worrying deeply about what to do. Railroad officials said, too, that the heavy rain and train arrivals probably would have to take the open fields and the beaches.

Despite one block of 2,000 front ring-side seats that are being sold for $20 each, representing possible receipts right there of almost $40,000, the most optimistic prediction of the Madison Square Garden promoters is for a total gate of $75,000. It is entirely possible the receipts will not run over $50,000, thereby returning the heavyweight championship back almost to the days when the title changed hands in back yards, barns and bargees for nothing but side bets.

The low record for heavyweight championship fights outdoors under the stars was set by the fight between Marquis West Palm Beach and Jim Corbett at Carson City, Nev., with receipts only $22,000.

FIGHTERS READY.

Trained to perfection, the 290-pound Carnera and his 185-pound challenger left the weather and ticket worries to their managers as they took a bit of light exercise to keep muscles on edge. Carnera, still held a 3-to-1 favorite for the first heavyweight title match Florida has planned since Corbett knocked out Charlie Mitchell at Jacksonville 40 years ago, spent the day walking and resting.

Confident that he will return the title to American hands that held it for 12 years, Carnera, the German, came along and Carnera, the Italian, followed him. Loughran shadow-boxed, skipped rope and punched the bag for six rounds at his training quarters, West Palm Beach. He will not come into Miami until the time for the weighing in at 1:30 p. m. (eastern standard time) tomorrow.

Loughran will depend on his speed and boxing skill to keep out of the path of the enormous champion through 15 rounds, but few were optimistic of his chances. In the final two days of training Carnera suddenly hit his stride after appearing worried and woefully inept in his earlier drills.

"I'll knock him out in three rounds," the champion said. "He will run and I will chase him. As soon as I catch him, boom—out he goes."

A change in arrangements today will see snowbound New York a chance to listen to a radio description of the match. Through a long-distance telephone hookup, the bout will be broadcast from a single station, WJAC in New York.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 153

Instantly a hundred warriors sprang to arms, then quickly relaxed and ran toward the bronzed giant standing silently among them. Those nearest touched his hands and his feet in reverence, for to the Waziri Tarzan, who was their king, was something more, a God.

Little Nikma scrambled quickly over the bodies of the kneeling blacks and leaped to Tarzan's shoulder, where he clung about his neck. "You have done well, Muwiro," said Tarzan to the Waziri leader who had fought for him in many grim campaigns. "And also little Nikma."

"We have always kept a day's march ahead of the strangers, Swana," replied Muwiro, "scamping well off the trail that they might not discover our fresh camp sites and become suspicious. They do not suspect your presence," said Tarzan. "I heard their talk."

"Where the dirt of the trail was soft, a warrior who marched at the rear brushed away the freshness of our spoor with a leafy bough," explained Muwiro. "Tomorrow we shall wait for them," said Tarzan, "and tonight you shall listen while I tell you our plans."

Atlanta Is One of Five Cities Cutting Taxes, Survey Shows

Of 16 Municipalities, 8 Will Raise Rates and in Three They Will Remain Unchanged for Year.

(Copyright, 1934, by United Press.)
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Municipal governments, now struggling with taxes and their budgets, still are tending toward higher taxes despite the agitation over high costs of local government.

A survey of 16 cities made by the United Press showed:

In eight the new tax rates will be higher.

In five they will be lower.

In three they will be unchanged.

Two of the cities have lower taxes than five years ago. They are Atlanta and San Francisco. The rate in New Orleans has not changed in many years. But the other cities included in the survey showed heavy increases over taxes assessed in the boom years.

Rates in New York city and in many of the suburban towns near New York have been stepped up appreciably for 1934 while the rate in Los Angeles is the highest in history although assessed valuations are low.

A comparison of latest tax rates in representative cities with the rate prevailing a year and five years ago, shows:

New York City—Basic rate: present, $2.50 per $100; year ago, $2.35 per $100. Gross rate range in five boroughs: Present, $2.71 to $2.83.

San Francisco—Basic rate: present, $2.40 per $100; year ago, $2.40 per $100. Gross rate range in five boroughs: Present, $2.40 to $2.40.

Wallace to Seek Greater Powers

Secretary Would Establish Compulsory Control of All Farm Products.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Provision for establishing compulsory control of all farm production without additional legislation will be proposed as an amendment to the agricultural adjustment act expected to be introduced tomorrow by Chairman Jones, democrat, Texas, of the house agriculture committee.

The amendment, designed to strengthen the act, was submitted to Jones by Secretary Wallace today. It would permit the secretary to establish quotas or allotments for any crop covered by the license and marketing agreement following agreement by two-thirds of the farmers affected.

Charles C. Davis, farm administrator, said tonight that while this and other proposed amendments actually would give the secretary of agriculture legal power to establish compulsory control under marketing agreements and licenses, it was a practical thing such control as nationally grown crops, such as wheat or corn or hogs, would be difficult.

Another amendment would broaden the scope of contracts entered into between the secretary and farmers to allow one contract to cover all crops, whether or not they are declared to be basic commodities.

This provides that agreements could be drawn "requiring the producers who are parties to such agreements to reduce or limit acreage and or production of certain agricultural commodities other than basic agricultural commodities, as well as of one or more basic agricultural commodities."

It also would allow the administration to draft marketing agreements with producers, processors, associations of producers, and others handling any agricultural commodity in interstate or foreign commerce.

Black Hand Note Found On Door of Atlanta Home

It may have been a child's prank, but when Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Murr found a "black hand" note pinned to their door at 672 Cassard avenue Tuesday night at about 10 o'clock they turned it over to a policeman.

"Don't come out of your house for a year or I will kill you," was the pencilled message on a piece of paper torn from a writing tablet such as is used in grammar schools. It crudely drawn skull and crossbones was the signature.

Mr. Murr turned the notice over to Patrolman M. V. Moss and Moss took it to Captain A. J. Holcomb who expressed the opinion it was the work of a child.

U. S. Child Labor Ban Rejected in Virginia

By the Associated Press.
Virginia state legislators today rejected a resolution for ratification of the child labor amendment while South Carolina solons brought new measures to recommit the finance committee's $6,784,000 appropriation report for reductions.

Both actions were taken in the upper house of the general assembly. At Columbia a motion to send the money bill back to the committee brought a protest from Senator Nicholson, of Greensboro, who said the provision for 10 per cent pay raise for state employees and leaving out a similar increase for school teachers.

In the South Carolina house of representatives a resolution to invite Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, to address the house at noon tomorrow was defeated until tomorrow when 10 members objected.

The action doomed the bills to indefinite postponement, beyond resuscitation by discharging the committee on a motion from the floor.

After setting the $82,000,000 general appropriations bill and the administration's $875,000 bill in the order named, an special and continuing orders for 11:20 a. m. tomorrow, the house of delegates worked on its calendar at a whirlwind pace, passing bills in less than that number of minutes.

The bill to legalize horse racing and pari-mutuel betting in Virginia was "killed" today by the senate. The senate rejected the bill by a 30-to-0 vote.

The same proposal met similar fate in the Virginia general assembly in 1928. Since the proposal was made in 1924, 20 of the necessary 30 states have ratified.

Will Limit Authority of Commission To Call for Specific Data

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Yielding to the demand of the New York Stock Exchange, authors of the pending bill to place the speculative securities markets under strict governmental control said tonight they were considering modifications that would restrict the board powers otherwise conferred by the bill upon the federal trade commission.

The proposed change, they explained, would specify the information to be required of a corporation seeking to register its shares. The present provision would empower the commission to obtain whatever data it should deem desirable.

In hearing before the senate banking committee today, Roland Redmond, counsel for the stock exchange, complained that as this section stood it would place American business "under the heel" of the commission.

Thomas Corcoran, reconstruction corporation attorney, who helped draft the measure, called this contention a "bugaboo put out by the exchange" but agreed that the bill might be modified to restrict the commission's power "to the protection of investors and the maintenance of an honest market."

Ferdinand Pecora, the committee counsel, who directed the long investigation of stock market practices and who is writing the bill, later said such a change was under consideration and probably would be carried out.

Several other modifications also are under consideration. One of these would exclude banks from the section prohibiting loans on unlisted securities and confine that prohibition largely to brokers.

Another would exempt "arbitrage transactions" from the section giving the trade commission power to say when and how short sales shall be made. Such transactions are intended to equalize quotations on a stock listed on two or more exchanges.

As written, the provisions outlawing certain manipulative practices would apply only to listed stocks. A change is under consideration which would extend unlisted securities under this section.

WASHINGTON IS COLD
TOWARD RECOGNITION
WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—(UP)—Any and all suggestions that conversations be inaugurated regarding American recognition of the Manchukuo government are rejected with rigid indifference by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and his assistants.

This was re-emphasized today upon receipt of press dispatches from Hsin-King, the Manchukuo capital, revealing tentative plans there for launching a campaign to win recognition of the major powers, including the United States.

The United States has no intention of recognizing Manchukuo now or in the near future, it was stated on highest authority. Hull said no consideration whatever has been given or is being given to that subject.

Non-foreigners will be allowed to see the youth Pu-yi at the altar on Thursday. No photographs will be allowed. No reporters will be given or is being given to that subject.

Claire Harper and Helen Boykin
Delight Audience of Music-Lovers
Claire Harper, violinist, and Helen Kochanski, won her ovation from her audience of admirers. Ruby Asker Chalmers shared Miss Harper's glory with the superb accompaniment.

Helen Boykin, a recent addition to Atlanta's artistic circles, is a pianist of remarkably clean-cut technique, with a delicate touch and a finish in her performance, but lacking in emotion and fire. Her first number was C. P. E. Bach's "Sonata in C major," imbued with delicate fineness and classic style. Others of this group were Schumann's "In der Nacht" and a Chopin prelude and etude. Her last group was gratefully received, especially the "Rhapsody" in F sharp minor, Dolmarty, calling for the encore, "Arabesque" by Debussy.

After the program the audience enjoyed an informal reception in the ballroom of the club.

Continually Shortening Swings
WRECKS GAME
Alex Morrison says: "For the sake of accuracy, many players shorten their swings. In time they become wild in the matter of direction and are forced to shorten their swings even more. This shortening invariably causes a loss of distance. Eventually, the player suffers the loss of both direction and distance. The reason: In the first place faulty body action forced him to cut down his backswing. Since he is not doing nothing to improve this body action it became worse, forcing him to make another cut in the length of his backswing—overcoming the tendency to keep himself to his faults instead of overcoming them. The proper body action will enable you to produce a swing that is both powerful and accurate for many a long day. It's worth learning."

Georgia's Great Outdoors
Shooting doves in September is going to be a big factor in their extermination. The H. S. magazine, Southern Game and Fish News, recently conducted a poll of sportsmen on September shooting of doves, and the replies were overwhelming. The magazine says: "September at all. The reason is that the doves are nesting right on up until November in some places, and the death of the parents not only takes them out of the population, but leaves the young birds in the nest to starve to death. In the interest of keeping our doves, therefore, we urge you to eliminate the September open season from the federal game laws. Do you want to see doves go the way of the passenger pigeon?"

Don't tell anybody, but there are rumors in the game and fish department about something of interest to fishers. It's not a lie. It's going to be a liar's contest. It's more than likely to be something like a prize contest for the biggest fish of the year. We expect to have something more definite later on.

Many hunters have called in regard to the close of the bird season. Since the first of the month it is unlawful to hunt birds. ZACK CRAVEY, Commissioner.

BASKET FANS TURNED AWAY
ground in basketball is something to talk about. Since the first of the year, when he was appointed a game and fish deputy, he had done quite a bit of refereeing in middle and southern Georgia.

Increased interest in basketball in middle and southern Georgia is amazing, Morgan tells you. Capacity crowds have seen the games this season.

Here are a few examples: The tournament at Edenton drew the biggest crowds in history. There were 1,340 fans at the games last Saturday.

The week before, at Perry, fans were turned away. And last Saturday, at Cordele, 1,200 fans jammed into the gymnasium to see the games.

Fort Valley has been doing a capacity basketball business. Lanier, at Macon, has been playing before crowds of 2,000 and 2,500. Record crowds are expected for the G. I. A. A. tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

GREAT TEAMS
There are some great teams down here, Morgan contends. "They were coached and have fine equipment. Basketball is enjoying a boom in all the sections I have visited."

Basketball shells and gymnasiums are being built in all communities. They are taking CWA funds, lumber donated by public-spirited citizens and some school funds and building indoor courts. A lot of the teams have played outdoors heretofore.

And so basketball in southern and middle Georgia, which always has been good, is growing bigger and better. They're building big plants to house the crowds.

It's not a boom; it's a bonanza. And Charlie Morgan will tell you, emphatically, that it's only the beginning.
